

Think, Pair, Share: Will Shari'ah law be the same everywhere?

There are five different schools of interpretation of sharia: one in the Shia tradition of Islam and four in the Sunni tradition. Middle Eastern countries of the former Ottoman empire favour the Hanafi doctrine and north African countries prefer the Maliki doctrine; Indonesia and Malaysia follow the Shafi'i doctrine; Saudi Arabia adheres to the Hanbali doctrine; and Iran follows the Shia Jaafari school. All the schools are similar, but some take a more literal approach to texts while others prefer a loose interpretation.

The many faces of Sharia

By Prof. Amrutha Michael Sathyan

When many non-Muslims think of the Sharia, they often conjure up an image of a public beheading or amputation.

However, Sharia offers autonomy in its various implementations throughout the Islamic world.

Saudi Arabia has long practised a harsh form of the law, under which murderers and drug smugglers may be executed, thieves lose their hands, and adulterers may be stoned.

But as Islamic states of the Anglo-Saxon tradition in common systems, this does not offer a satisfactory understanding of the Sharia.

Islamic offences require harsher penalties, but of course, it's not the case that everyone in Saudi Arabia is walking around with a sword or other lethal weapon. Nor are they all in fear of being put to the sword or being beheaded. The law.

Other Muslims said that Saudi Arabia's judges are the only branch of state over which the country's royal family has no control, as Sharia makes them heavily independent of all but their religious obligations.

Yet, in the Anglo-Saxon systems, not all Muslim countries prevent politics from interfering with the purity of Sharia.

understood Colonial influence was adapted to local circumstances and synthesized with premodern understandings in an eclectic legal environment to create solutions to local problems while maintaining a continuity with the shari'a. This book will be of interest to scholars and students of Islamic Studies, Islamic Law and Islamic Legal History.

Everyday Islamic Law and the Making of Modern South Asia Elizabeth Lhost, 2025-02-20 Beginning in the late eighteenth century British rule transformed the relationship between law, society and the state in South Asia. But qazis and muftis alongside ordinary people without formal training in law fought back as the colonial system in India sidelined Islamic legal experts. They petitioned the East India Company for employment, lobbied imperial legislators for recognition and built robust institutions to serve their communities. By bringing legal debates into the public sphere they resisted the colonial state's authority over personal law and rejected legal codification by embracing flexibility and possibility. With postcards, letters and telegrams they made everyday Islamic law vibrant and resilient and challenged the hegemony of the Anglo-Indian legal system. Following these developments from the beginning of the Raj through independence, Elizabeth Lhost rejects narratives of stagnation and decline to show how an unexpected coterie of scholars, practitioners and ordinary individuals negotiated the contests and challenges of colonial legal change. The rich archive of unpublished fatwa files, qazi notebooks and legal documents they left behind chronicles their efforts to make Islamic law relevant for everyday life even beyond colonial courtrooms and the confines of family law. Lhost shows how ordinary Muslims shaped colonial legal life and how their diversity and difference have contributed to contemporary debates about religion, law, pluralism and democracy in South Asia and beyond.

Routledge Handbook of Islam in Southeast Asia Syed Muhammad Khairudin Aljunied, 2022-03-03 This handbook explores the ways in which Islam, as one of the fastest growing religions, has become a global faith for both Muslims and non-Muslims in Southeast Asia with its universality, inclusivity and shared features with other Islamic expressions and manifestations. It offers an up-to-date, wide-ranging, comprehensive, concise and readable introduction to the field of Islam in Southeast Asia. With specific themes of pertinent contemporary relevance, the contributions by experts in the field provide fresh insights into the roles of states, societies, scholars, social movements, political parties, economic institutions, sacred sites and other forces that structured the faith over many centuries. The handbook is structured in three parts: Muslim Global Circulations, Marginal Narratives, Refashioning Pieties. This handbook stands out as a single and synergistic reference work that explores the ebb and flow of Islam, seeking to decenter many existing assumptions about it in Southeast Asia. It will be an indispensable resource for scholars, students and policymakers working on Islam, Muslims and their interactions with other communities in a plural setting.
