Rural Development and the Construction of New Markets Paul Hebinck, Sergio Schneider, Jan Douwe van der Ploeg, 2014-09-15 This book focuses on empirical experiences related to market development and specifically new markets with structurally different characteristics than mainstream markets Europe Brazil China and the rather robust and complex African experiences are covered to provide a rich multidisciplinary and multi level analysis of the dynamics of newly emerging markets Rural Development and the Construction of New Markets analyses newly constructed markets as nested markets Although they are specific market segments that are nested in the wider commodity markets for food they have a different nature different dynamics a different redistribution of value added different prices and different relations between producers and consumers Nested markets embody distinction viz a viz the general markets in which they are embedded A key aspect of nested markets is that these are constructed in and through social struggles which in turn positions this book in relation to classic and new institutional economic analyses of markets These markets emerge as steadily growing parts of the farmer populations are dedicating their time energy and resources to the design and production of new goods and services that differ from conventional agricultural outputs The speed and intensity with which this is taking place and the products and services involved vary considerably across the world In large parts of the South notably Africa farmers are structurally combining farming with other activities By contrast in Europe and large parts of Latin America farmers have taken steps to generate new products and services which exist alongside ongoing agricultural production This book not only discusses the economic rationales and dynamics for these markets but also their likely futures and the threats and opportunities they face

Livelihood and Microfinance Hotze B. Lont, Otto Hospes, 2004 Publisher Description

Insights Into Gender Equity, Equality and Power Relations in Sub-saharan Africa Mansah Prah, 2013 Since gender entered the development discourse in the Seventies African countries have increasingly taken the concept on board in policy and practice This concern may be due to either one or a combination of the following factors the ideological positioning of African countries demands by their donors and development partners and demands by organised local groups and NGOs Gender in the development discourse ought to transform power relations between men and women and shift them to social relations that reflect their equal access to productive resources opportunities and social and material benefits The result of such actions should be an achievement of comparable status of women and men This volume initiated by OSSREA seeks to examine in more depth issues regarding the gender power imbalance in sub Saharan African countries with a specific focus on the eastern and southern African regions The chapters in this book present research that examines and analyses the effectiveness and efficiency of gender mainstreaming policies strategies and projects developed and implemented by national and international actors The themes inter weave with each other although they address gender issues in specific countries and specific contexts This can be explained by the shared colonial and post colonial heritage of African countries It is useful therefore to view the structure of the book as a spiral of inter connected issues that address similar themes approaching them from different levels Purely for ease of reading the contributions have been organised into three parts with over arching themes that at first glance may seem not to fit well together A theme that runs through all the chapters is the persistence of patriarchal values and attitudes in Africa and its constraining effect on the achievement of gender equity and equality For the City Yet to Come Abdou Maliqalim Simone, 2004-10-07 A study of how colonial and postcolonial legacies manifest in African cities and African urban planning From Cape to Congo Mwesiga Laurent Baregu, Chris Landsberg, 2003 From the ongoing war in Angola to sporadic instability in Zimbabwe and Lesotho to the conflict in Congo to issues of land reform and the ravages of AIDS southern Africa faces varied and complex threats to its peace and security The authors of From Cape to Congo assess the region's major security challenges as well as the roles of local regional and external actors in managing them Their theoretically informed but practical approach encompasses the political economic and military arenas At Risk Piers Blaikie, Terry Cannon, Ian Davis, Ben Wisner, 2014-01-21 The term natural disaster is often used to refer to natural events such as earthquakes hurricanes or floods However the phrase natural disaster suggests an uncritical acceptance of a deeply engrained ideological and cultural myth At Risk questions this myth and argues that extreme natural events are not disasters until a vulnerable group of people is exposed The updated new edition confronts a further ten years of ever more expensive and deadly disasters and discusses disaster not as an aberration but as a signal failure of mainstream development Two analytical models are provided as tools for understanding vulnerability One links remote and distant root causes to unsafe conditions in a progression of vulnerability The other uses the concepts of access and livelihood to understand why some households are more vulnerable than others Examining key natural events and incorporating strategies to create a safer world this revised edition is an important resource for those involved in the fields of environment and development studies On Durban's Docks Ralph Callebert, 2017 Offers a new approach to the study of labor on the subcontinent and globally questioning the relevance of the predominant wage labor paradigm for Africa and the Global South On Durban's Docks focuses on dock labor in early apartheid Durban South Africa's main port city and a crucial node in the trade and communication networks of the Indian Ocean and the British Empire Although the labor of Zulu migrant dock workers made global trade possible they lived their lives largely in isolation both socially and economically from these global networks Using seventy seven oral histories and extensive archival research Ralph Callebert examines the working and living conditions of Durban's dock workers and the livelihoods of their rural households These households relied on a combination of wage labor pilferage informal trade and the rural economy Dock workers experiences were thus more intricate than a focus on wage labor alone could capture Foregrounding such multifaceted livelihoods Callebert considers the dynamics of gender within dock workers households as well as their complicated political identities including their economic nationalism and fervent anti Indian sentiments On Durban's Docks thus offers a new approach to the study of labor on the subcontinent and globally questioning the relevance of the predominant wage labor paradigm for Africa and for the Global South Ralph Callebert teaches history at the University of Toronto Reclaiming the Land Sam Moyo, Paris Yeros, 2013-07-04 Rural movements have recently emerged to become some of the most important social forces in opposition to neoliberalism From

Brazil and Mexico to Zimbabwe and the Philippines rural movements of diverse political character but all sharing the same social basis of dispossessed peasants and unemployed workers have used land occupations and other tactics to confront the neoliberal state This volume brings together for the first time across three continents Africa Latin America and Asia an intellectually consistent set of original investigations into this new generation of rural social movements These country studies seek to identify their social composition strategies tactics and ideologies to assess their relations with other social actors including political parties urban social movements and international aid agencies and other institutions and to examine their most common tactic the land occupation its origins pace and patterns as well as the responses of governments and landowners At a more fundamental level this volume explores the ways in which two decades of neoliberal policy including new land tenure arrangements intended to hasten the commodification of land and new land uses linked to global markets have undermined the social reproduction of the rural labour force and created the conditions for popular resistance The volume demonstrates the longer term potential impact of these movements In economic terms they raise the possibility of tackling immiseration by means of the redistribution of land and the reorganisation of production on a more efficient and socially responsible basis And in political terms breaking the power of landowners and transnational capital with interests in land could ultimately open the way to an alternative pattern of capital accumulation and development

Surviving on the Move Jonathan Crush, Bruce Frayne, 2010-02-01 Since the collapse of apartheid there have been major increases in migration flows within to and from the Southern African region Cross border movements are at an all time high across the region and internal migration is at record levels The implications of greater mobility for areas of origin and destination have not been systematically explored Migration is most often seen as a negative phenomenon a result of increased poverty and the failure of development More recently the positive relationship between migration and development has been emphasised by agencies such as the Global Commission on International Migration the Global Forum on Migration and Development the United Nations Development Programme and the African Union The chapters in this publication are all based on primary research and examine various facets of the relationship between migration poverty and development including issues that are often ignored in the migration development debate like migration and food security and migration and vulnerability to HIV The book argues that the development and poverty reduction potential of migration is being hindered by national policies that fail to recognise and build on the positive aspects and potential of migration As a result as these studies show migrants are often pushed to the margins where they are forced to survive on the move Their treatment violates labour laws and basic human rights and compromises the potential of migration as a means to create sustainable livelihoods reduce poverty and food insecurity mitigate the brain drain and promote the productive use of remittances This book shows that migrant lives and livelihoods should be at the centre of international and African debates about migration poverty and development
