Collection and Use of Cancer Family History in Primary Care Nadeem Qureshi, 2009-05 This systematic review was undertaken to 1 evaluate the accuracy of patient reporting of cancer family history 2 identify and evaluate tools designed to capture cancer family history that are applicable to the primary care setting and 3 identify and evaluate risk assessment tools RATs in promoting appropriate management of familial cancer risk in primary care settings For family history tools FHxTs and RATs studies were limited to those applicable to primary care settings Conclusions Informants reporting their cancer family history have greater accuracy for relatives free of cancer than those with cancer Reporting accuracy may vary among different cancer types Charts and tables Family Communication about Genetics Clara L. Gaff, Carma L.

Bylund, 2010-07-01 Genetics is in all senses a family affair The diagnosis of a genetic condition affects not only the patient and biological family members who may themselves be at risk but also family more generally as support may be sought from those considered kin and who may or may not be at risk themselves It is considered best practice in genetic consultations to explore who will be informed within the family when a genetic condition or risk is diagnosed particularly when the health of other family members is at risk There is little guidance or consensus on how to achieve the implicit goal of informed family members while respecting patient confidentiality however There is a need for practitioners to be aware of the dynamics of family communication and to have guidance about how they may sensitively facilitate communication about genetics within families This handbook facilitates the development of clinical practices relating to family communication about genetics Relevant theories of family communication are summarized and related to a clinical genetics milieu and from this frameworks for practitioners are presented A book of this nature is particularly timely as the completion of the Human Genome Project will result in an unprecedented amount of information about genetic constitution and health risks becoming available to individuals and their families The presence of a potential genetic condition in a family is not a new phenomenon However the growth in testing for genetic conditions common complex conditions and variants that may influence health as well as drug metabolism means that a greater number of individuals will face decisions about communicating this information to their relatives Many health professionals in all levels of health care will be confronted with issues of responsibility and practice in family communication about genetic information as they become providers of this testing

Dynamic Consultations with Psychiatrists Jason Maratos, 2022-06-14 Unique resource detailing the day to day activity of doctors who work on the coal face of psychiatry in an acute setting Dynamic Consultations With Psychiatrists is the outcome of a collaboration between the psychiatrists of a certain hospital and the author which has continued successfully for more than ten years containing a number of patient consultations and cases where psychiatry was used successfully to solve a patient's problem. The presentation of each case and particularly of the consultation is meant to demonstrate the process by which insights were gained. Each consultation is written in plain English with the deliberate avoidance of terminology and especially psychoanalytic jargon. Naturally all identified features of the patients have been deleted or changed so that the patients' privacy is not compromised. The format is near to a transcript so that the work demonstrates how the understanding evolves and emerges from the process. The structure of the book is not according to a diagnosis but according to presenting problem. In other words, the most prominent feature allowing for easy and efficient accessibility. Sample concepts and learning resources covered and included in Dynamic Consultations With Psychiatrists are as follows: How a doctor is faced with a patient who is suffering in their own particular way and how the clinician gets to develop a deeper understanding of their predicament; Difficulties the doctor faces in their encounter and the challenges they will face in their personal emotional wellbeing; Relationships with the other professionals both within their hospital and other agencies; Curtailed histories so that there is a seamless exposition of how the conclusions of the consultation have been reached. Psychiatrists, psychotherapists and students/instructors in related programs of study can use Dynamic Consultations With Psychiatrists to gain valuable insight into the thought process of practicing psychiatrists in relation to a myriad of patient problems, allowing them to learn vicariously and become better at dealing with their own patients' problems.
