Protected Area Conservation Strategy:

Protected Area Conservation Strategy (PARCS) Barbara Pitkin, 1995 Action Strategy for Protected Areas in the South Pacific Region, 1985 Transboundary Protected Areas Yale University, 2003-05-21

Top researchers share their expertise on conservation and sustainability in areas that extend across national borders. This informative and insightful book examines strategies being used by governments and NGOs to protect wild areas that cross national borders and cultural linguistic and socioeconomic boundaries. In addition to presenting case studies from five continents, Transboundary Protected Areas: The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies provides several theoretical overviews that suggest viable approaches to conserving biodiversity in these difficult to protect areas. From the editors: Historically, the borders of protected areas have been defined by convenient social, political, or proprietary boundaries rather than by ecological boundaries. Today, many scientists and practitioners are in agreement that the world's biodiversity and other natural resources can best be conserved on an ecosystem or regional scale, which may or may not be consistent with political boundaries. Efforts to protect land on an ecosystem scale have led to the creation of numerous transboundary protected areas, also referred to as international peace parks or transfrontier conservation areas. These areas, which often cross linguistic, socioeconomic, and cultural boundaries as well as national borders, represent regional conservation at its most complex. While many scientists and practitioners promote eco-regional approaches to conservation, many also advocate pursuing conservation goals on local or community scales. Conservationists therefore endeavor to achieve a seemingly incongruous mandate to pursue top-down regional goals using bottom-up local approaches. Transboundary Protected Areas: The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies addresses the vital questions associated with this mandate: Is it reasonable and realistic to approach regional conservation this way? What strategies have been employed to achieve these goals, and how successful have they been? Who benefits from transboundary conservation, and what are the costs? Reflecting the information delivered at the 2001 conference of the Yale chapter of the International Society of Tropical Foresters (ISTF), this book provides you with the best answers available at this time. The contributors include social and natural scientists, resource managers, policymakers, and community leaders. Transboundary Protected Areas: The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies brings them together for an interdisciplinary exploration of these questions and other critical issues related to conservation in and around transboundary protected areas. Specific cases that are thoughtfully examined in Transboundary Protected Areas: The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies include the public reaction to the Yellowstone to Yukon (Y2Y) Conservation Initiative; the ways in which the establishment of southern Africa's existing and proposed Transfrontier Conservation Areas (TFCAs) can help conserve biodiversity, aid socioeconomic development, and promote international peace, development, and conservation efforts in the Maloti-Drakensberg mountains of southern Africa, which straddle the borderlands between South Africa and Lesotho; the cultural aspects of protected area management in Venezuela and Guyana; the impact of transfrontier collaboration as evidenced by the International Gorilla Conservation Programme IGCP in the Virunga Bwindi region of Africa Uganda Rwanda and the Democratic Republic of Congo how the Nepalese have addressed the problems of poaching commercial logging illegal harvesting and smuggling of forest products and illegal trade of wildlife and wildlife products in the eastern Himalayas by implementing a transboundary biodiversity conservation initiative Helpful maps tables and figures make geographical regions and conservation information easy to assimilate National steppe conservation strategy and action plan

2021-2030 Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry, 2022-07-01 The project is carried out collaboratively by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations FAO and the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry General Directorate of Nature Conservation and National Parks GDNCNP General Directorate of Plant Production GDPP and General Directorate of Forestry GDF with the financial support of the Global Environment Facility GEF This project along with the National Steppe Conservation Strategy shows the importance FAO and the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry attach to the conservation of Turkey's rich and vulnerable steppe ecosystems their sustainable and cooperative management and awareness raising This Strategy is instrumental in contributing to the conservation of unique steppe assets possessed by Turkey at national level as well as fulfillment of international commitments such as those arising from the International Convention on Biological Diversity Aichi Goals of Convention on Biological Diversity and Convention to Combat Desertification It appears that there are hardly any policies or legal documents directly geared towards steppe ecosystems in Turkey as opposed to the legal and administrative documents for the conservation and management of mountain forests wetlands and coastal and marine ecosystems Therefore the National Steppe Conservation Strategy and Action Plan assumes special importance National System Planning for Protected Areas Adrian G.

Davey, 1998 A system plan is the design of a total reserve system covering the full range of ecosystems and communities found in a particular country identifying the range of purposes of protected areas and the relationships among the system components i.e. individual areas protected areas and other land uses and different sectors and levels of society Highlighting key linkages with other aspects of economic development it shows how various stakeholders can interact and cooperate to support effective and sustainable management of protected areas and help to establish priorities A valuable resource for all those involved with national system planning Protected Areas of the World IUCN Conservation Monitoring Centre, 1991

Economics of Protected Areas and Its Effect on Biodiversity Ram Bir Singh Kushwah,2001 With reference to India

Tropical Rainforest Responses to Climatic Change John Flenley,Mark Bush,2007-06-20 The goal of this book is to provide a current overview of the impacts of climate change on tropical forests to investigate past present and future climatic influences on the ecosystems with the highest biodiversity on the planet Tropical Rainforest Responses to Climatic Change will be the first book to examine how tropical rain forest ecology is altered by climate change rather than simply seeing how plant communities were altered Shifting the emphasis onto ecological processes e.g. how diversity is structured by climate and the subsequent impact on tropical forest ecology provides the reader with a more comprehensive coverage. A major theme of this book that emerges progressively is the interaction between humans, climate and forest ecology. While numerous books have appeared dealing with forest fragmentation and conservation, none have explicitly explored the long-term occupation of tropical systems, the influence of fire and the future climatic effects of deforestation coupled with anthropogenic emissions. Incorporating modelling of past and future systems paves the way for a discussion of conservation from a climatic perspective rather than the usual plea to stop logging.

The Economic, Social and Political Elements of Climate Change Walter Leal Filho, 2010-11-23. A unique feature of this book is its strong practice-oriented nature; it contains a wide range of papers dealing with the social, economic and political aspects of climate change, exemplifying the diversity of approaches to climate change management taking place all over the world in a way never seen before. In addition, the book describes a number of projects and other initiatives happening in Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin America and the Australasian region, providing a profile of the diversity of works taking place today.

Blue Economy and Ocean Sustainable Development in a Globalised World: Social, Political, Economic and Environmental Issues Ibukun J. Adewumi, Andrei Polejack, Joanna Vince, Maree E. Fudge, 2023-12-05. In the last decade, the concept of a Blue Economy has ignited a deep theoretical debate. Ranging from the integration of the triple bottom line of sustainability to the optimization of profit from ocean exploitation, the meaning of the term blue economy differs considerably between epistemic communities and even more so among national and regional policies. There is a general sense of the opportunity to realise enhanced social and economic benefits from the sustainable utilisation of their ocean and coastal resources under the umbrella framework of blue economy. Blue economy is gaining traction already as a significant component of national policies, even in spite of a clear conceptualization of the term. Many countries are now preparing national policies towards realising their blue economy ambitions, utilizing the concept as they see fit. Likewise, multilateral and regional organisations are developing guidelines and providing investment in new research technologies and financing tools that promote blue economy. Critical challenges abound, in particular in less privileged countries. These include the gap in research capabilities, governments prioritizing social wellbeing and economic profit in contrast to environmental protection, the identification of new and emerging areas of ocean economic activity that are both socially and ecologically sustainable and holds viable business models that can attract private investment.

Special Status Species Resource Management Plan Amendment, 2007. Guidelines for Applying Protected Area Management Categories Nigel Dudley, 2008.

IUCN's Protected Areas Management Categories, which classify protected areas according to their management objectives, are today accepted as the benchmark for defining, recording and classifying protected areas. They are recognized by international bodies such as the United Nations as well as many national governments. As a result, they are increasingly being incorporated into government legislation. These guidelines provide as much clarity as possible regarding the meaning and application of the Categories They describe the definition of the Categories and discuss application in particular biomes and management approaches
