Protecting Aboriginal Children:

Protecting Aboriginal Children Chris Walmsley, 2011-11-01 Beginning in the 1960s large numbers of Aboriginal children in Canada were removed from their families by provincial child welfare services Known as the sixties scoop the practice caused great harm to individuals and families and devastated communities Today Aboriginal children comprise roughly half the children in state care but since the 1980s bands and tribal councils have developed unique community based child welfare services to better protect Aboriginal children Protecting Aboriginal Children explores contemporary approaches to the protection of Aboriginal children through interviews with practising social workers employed at Aboriginal child welfare organizations and the child protection service in British Columbia It places current practice in a sociohistorical context describes emerging practice in decolonizing communities and identifies the effects of political and media controversy on social workers This is the first book to document emerging practice in Aboriginal communities and describe child protection practice simultaneously from the point of view of the Aboriginal and non Aboriginal social worker Those working in child welfare or contemplating a career in child protection will find the book an insightful analysis of current practice thinking and experience Aboriginal peoples with an interest in health and human services as well as social work students child welfare workers and administrators and health education and human service professionals will find it particularly useful

Aboriginal Child Welfare, Self-government and the Rights of Indigenous Children Sonia Harris-Short, 2012 This volume addresses the contentious and topical issue of aboriginal self government over child welfare Using case studies from Australia and Canada it discusses aboriginal child welfare in historical and comparative perspectives and critically examines recent legal reforms and changes in the design management and delivery of child welfare services aimed at securing the decolonization of aboriginal children and families Within this context the author identifies the limitations of reconciling the conflicting demands of self determination and sovereignty and suggests that international law can provide more nuanced and culturally sensitive solutions Referring to the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child it is argued that the effective decolonization of aboriginal child welfare requires a journey well beyond the single issue of child welfare to the heart of the debate over self government self determination and sovereignty in both national and international law pub desc

Protecting Aboriginal Children Christopher Walmsley, 2023 Decolonising Indigenous Child Welfare Terri Libesman, 2013-12-04 During the past decade a remarkable transference of responsibility to Indigenous children's organisation has taken place in many parts of Australia Canada the USA and New Zealand It has been influenced by Indigenous peoples human rights advocacy at national and international levels by claims to self determination and by the globalisation of Indigenous children's organisations Thus far this reform has taken place with little attention from academic and non Indigenous communities now Decolonising Indigenous Child Welfare Comparative Perspectives considers these developments and evaluating law reform with respect to Indigenous child welfare asks whether the pluralisation of responses to their welfare and well being within a cross cultural post colonial context can improve the lives of Indigenous children The legislative frameworks for the delivery of child welfare services to Indigenous children are assessed in terms of the degree of self determination which they afford Indigenous communities The book draws upon interdisciplinary research and the author s experience collaborating with the peak Australian Indigenous children s organisation for over a decade to provide a thorough examination of this international issue Dr Terri Libesman is a Senior Lecturer in the Law Faculty at the University of Technology Sydney She has collaborated researched and published for over a decade with the peak Australian Indigenous children s organisation Protecting Children Kathleen Kufeldt, Barbara Fallon, Brad McKenzie, 2021-06-25

Herrenkohl, 2019-04-26 This volume provides readers around the globe with a focused and comprehensive examination of how to prevent and respond to child maltreatment using evidence informed public health approaches and programs that meet the needs of vulnerable children and struggling families and communities It outlines the system failures of contemporary forensically driven child protection practice Detailed guidance is provided about how to re think earlier intervention strategies and establish stronger and more effective programs and services that prevent maltreatment at the population level Service user and stakeholder perspectives particularly from marginalized groups including Indigenous peoples highlight how public health approaches can better support families and keep children safe Case studies from different countries grapple with the fraught nature of large system change and the various strategies needed to effect multi level reforms Presenting the reader with an array of innovative services used in different institutional and community context this volume confronts the complex challenges found in implementing successful prevention programs that are aligned with diverse cultural and political environments and community expectations People, Politics, and Child Welfare in British Columbia Leslie T. Foster, Brian Wharf, 2011-11-01 People Politics and Child Welfare in British Columbia traces the evolution of policies and programs intended to protect children in BC from neglect and abuse Analyzing this evolution reveals that child protection policy and practice has reflected the priorities of politicians and public servants in power With few exceptions efforts to establish effective programs have focused on structural arrangements staffing responsibilities and rules to regulate the practice of child welfare workers Contributors to this book conclude that these attempts have been unsuccessful thus far because they have failed to address the impact of poverty on clients The need to respect the cultural traditions and values of First Nations clients has also been ignored Effective services require recognizing and remedying poverty s impact establishing community control over services and developing a radically different approach to the day to day practice of child welfare workers People Politics and Child Welfare in British Columbia provides a crucial assessment of the state of child welfare in the province Practitioners scholars and students in social work child and youth care education and other human service professions will find this book particularly important Legal Education Through an Indigenous Lens Nicole Watson, Heather Douglas, 2024-12-04 This book provides a comprehensive resource for accommodating and pursuing Indigenous perspectives in legal education The book is divided into three sections The first section highlights the continuing issues that Indigenous people face in law schools and universities including the ongoing impacts of colonisation and intergenerational trauma institutional racism and exclusion This section also includes chapters that explore arguments for the recognition of Indigenous legal knowledge and of the impact of settler law and the incorporation of Indigenous concepts laws and ways of thinking about settler law across the curriculum The second section explores how Indigenous ways of reading and thinking about settler law make a difference to how settler law is understood and interpreted Contributors consider the power of storytelling and address the prospect of law s decolonisation The third section of the book grapples with how traditional law school subjects can be taught through an Indigenous lens including torts public law criminal law and sentencing clinical legal education and native title Throughout the book demonstrates the importance of and offers practical advice for teaching law in a way that includes critical Indigenous perspectives This book will be of enormous value to teachers researchers students in law legal studies and Indigenous studies and others with an interest in decolonising legal education The Open Access version of this book available at www.taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license

Child Protection Systems Neil Gilbert,Nigel Parton,Marit Skivenes,2011-05-27 This book builds upon and advances the comparative analysis of child protection systems that was conducted in the mid 1990s Since the mid 1990s however much has changed in the realm of child welfare and how states define and deal with their responsibilities for children at risk This book sets out to identify and analyse these changes and their implications with a particular focus on assessing the extent to which the child protection and family service orientations continue to provide a helpful framework for understanding and comparing systems in different countries

Psycho-Legal Concepts for Parenting in Child Custody and Child Protection Vol. 1 Don Tustin,2024-11-15 This book provides an overview of changes in legislation in Australia concerning both family law and child protection law The topic is important as the Australian Government has identified that the rate of mental disorder in some cohorts of children is high and rising These cohorts of children live in families where they are vulnerable because they are exposed to risk factors that can be changed by a coordinated effort from parents therapists and lawyers The aim of the book is to identify psycho legal concepts that need to be understood by professionals who work in the fields of child custody and child protection and to bring these concepts together to improve coordination between the two fields of practice The purpose of the book is to be a practice manual for professionals from the disciplines of law social work and psychologists who work in specialized legal roles dealing with families where children are vulnerable to developing mental health difficulties Volume 1 of the book provides a perspective from a mental health clinician about concepts and principles that arise in Australian family oriented courts and that need to be shared between disciplines This book proposes that some concepts be identified as psycho legal as the concepts need to be shared between disciplines who work with court involved families The book also proposes that psycho legal concepts be shared between the jurisdictions of child custody and child protection In this book proposals are made to improve collaboration between disciplines and to maximize the best interests of children National Systems of Child Protection

Decision-Making and Judgment in Child Welfare and Protection John D. Fluke, Mónica López López, Rami Benbenishty, Erik J. Knorth, Donald J. Baumann, 2020 Professionals in child welfare and protection are often required to make decisions fraught with many difficulties and shortcomings that have crucial implications for children and families There are many indications that these decisions are frequently unreliable and involve unavoidable errors in judgement due to the uncertainties This book applies much needed insights gleaned from the fields of business and behavioral economics to child welfare practice bridging a critical gap in the child welfare and protection research agenda

Child Protection and Family Support Nigel Parton, 2002-09-09 Child protection and family support is a major social issue and there is a continuing debate about how policies and practices in relation to child protection integrate with those in family support and child welfare more generally Prompted in part by the Audit Commission and the publication of the Department of Health Research studies in Child Protection it is the key issue facing all child welfare agencies While it is agreed that there needs to be a rebalancing between child protection and family support there is a real fear amongst managers and practitioners if things go wrong subjecting them to public inquiry and media contempt Child Protection and Family Support brings together a range of distinguished researchers and commentators to analyze the nature of the issue and possible ways forward It draws on recent research case studies policy makers managers and practitioners in social work and child welfare agencies

Indigenous Children's Right to Participate in Law and Policy Development Holly Doel-Mackaway, 2021-09-28 This book presents a model for reforming and developing Indigenous related legislation and policy not only in Australia but also in other jurisdictions The model provides guidance about how to seek listen to and respond to the voices of Indigenous children and young people The participation of Indigenous children and young people when carried out in a culturally and age appropriate way and based on free prior and informed consent is an invaluable resource capable of empowering children and young people and informing Indigenous related legislation and policy This project contributes to the emerging field of robust ethically sound participatory research with Indigenous children and young people and proposes ways in which Australian and international legislators and policymakers can implement the principle of children's participation by involving Aboriginal children and young people in the development of law and policy pertaining to their lives. This book provides accounts from Aboriginal children and young people detailing their views on how they can be involved in law and policy development in the future. It shows the latest state of knowledge on the topic and will be of interest to researchers, academics, policymakers, legislators, and students in the fields of human rights, law, children's rights, participation rights, Indigenous peoples' law, and family, child, and social welfare law.
