Metabolism and Artificial Nutrition in the Critically Ill G. Guarnieri, F. Iscra, 2012-12-06 The critically ill patient in intensive care may present with serious metabolic alterations caused directly by the illness or secondarily by complications e g infections organ failure or sepsis developing within a few hours of hospitalization or in the following days Among the situations which maintain and further trigger rapidly evolving altered metabolism are complex hormonal reactions particularly those of the hypothalamus hypophysis adrenal axis and abnormal stimulation of the autonomic nervous system In fact the sympathetic nervous system is known to cause significant metabolic alterations For example a surgery patient afflicted by septic complications may become hypercatabolic and experience significant nitrogen loss the altered protein metabolism may in turn heavily influence carbohydrate and lipid metabolism as well Thus it is apparent that for optimal care of patients with altered metabolic functions further knowledge is necessary regarding the physiopathology of metabolism and the physiopathological mechanisms which alter the consumption of principal energy substrates Many experimental and clinical studies have investigated the metabolic aspects of individual organs or organ systems However for a correct evaluation of such metabolic events in addition to studying the roles of metabolic enzymes active metabolites and the glutathione system it is interesting to consider the use of indirect calorimetry as a valid and important investigative technique The critically ill patient with major alterations in nutritional status may require artificial nutritive support administered through either parenteral or enteral routes

The Brain and Host Defense, 2009-12-24 It is now well recognized that the brain and especially the hypothalamus plays an important role in the regulation of immune reactions and inflammation This book aims to review our current state of knowledge of this important field Key historical findings are presented and the reciprocal interactions between the brain and the immune system are examined Particular emphasis is placed on inflammation a critical host defense reaction that serves as an effector response for both the adaptive and innate immune systems Mechanisms implicated in brain defense as well as in more general host defense are discussed The regulatory influences of the brain on inflammatory responses are included with particular reference to the role of the hypothalamus which is also the main director the hormonal regulation of immune inflammatory Gender related differences in immune responsiveness circadian modulator of immune responses and evidence that behavioral conditioning e g reward of immune responses is possible are used as examples to reinforce the notion that the neuroendocrine system exerts a fundamental and complex regulatory influence on the immune system Presents timely issues such as immunological aspects of the blood brain barrier and the role of inflammatory mediators in the evolution of strokes and degenerative diseases Includes analysis of the role of the brain in the adaptive responses to disease Evaluates the argument that further knowledge of the influence of the brain on the immune system will provide new insights to the
