Protein Secretion A Critical Analysis Of The Vesticle Model:

Protein Secretion Stephen S. Rothman, 1985 Investigates a new model of protein secretion and challenges the vesicle theory of transport which is based on the notion that protein molecules can not pass through biological membranes or through channels within them The book develops a diffusion based model of transport known as the equilibrium theory which views the secretion of protein as an integral part of the study of biological transport It discusses the general context for the vesicle paradigm describes the paradigm and critically examines its assumptions viz the impermeability of membranes to proteins the filling of secretion granules with product the exocytosis model of secretion and the signal hypothesis and goes on to review a variety of experimental tests of the paradigm considering these from the viewpoint of the diffusion based theory of transport

Proteins Crossing Membranes Stephen Rothman, 2019-01-17 In an intriguing series of experiments carried out many years ago a common scientific belief feted by no less than three Nobel prizes was brought into question The observations were about proteins the molecules that the genetic code specifies and that are in one way or another central to all of life's activities The experiments however were not about what proteins do but how they are moved in particular how they are moved from where they are made to where they act The results of these studies conflicted with the standard view of how this happens and thus became controversial The standard view the vesicle theory of protein secretion envisions proteins being carried within and out of cells en masse in membrane bound sacs or vesicles The controversial experiments demonstrated that to the contrary individual protein molecules cross the relevant membranes as a result of their own motion This was thought to be impossible at the time Proteins Crossing Membranes is a personal narrative that tells the story of the controversy Among other things the author illustrates that scientists like the rest of us can rigidly hold onto their beliefs despite evidence that they are misguided Key Features Reviews the data in support and critical of the vesicle theory of protein secretion Explores the ways scientists respond to evidence that challenges a favored theory Documents the author's personal experiences in this conflict laden situation

Membrane Protein Transport S.S. Rothman, 1996-06-25 This is the third volume in a series on membrane protein transfer Membrane protein transport underlies the topological disposition of many proteins within cells and it is this disposition that allows for the co ordination of the central cellular processes such as metabolism

National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1988 Nutritional and Toxicological Significance of Enzyme Inhibitors in Foods Mendel Friedman, 2013-03-09 Soybean proteins are widely used in human foods in a variety of forms including baby formulas flour soy protein concentrates soy protein isolates soy sauces textured soy fibers and tofu The presence of inhibitors of digestive enzymes in soy proteins impairs nutritional quality and possible safety of this important legume Normal processing conditions based on the use of heat do not completely inactivate these inhibitors so that residual amounts of plant protease inhibitors are consumed by animals and man Inhibitors of digestive enzymes are present not only in legumes such as soybeans lima beans and kidney beans but also in nearly all plant foods including cereals and potatoes albeit in much smaller amounts The antinutritional effects of inhibitors of proteolytic enzymes have been widely studied and can be ameliorated by processing and or sulfur amino acid fortification A more urgent concern is reports that rats fed diets containing even low levels of soybean derived inhibitors which are found in foods such as soy based baby formulas may develop over their lifespan pancreatic lesions leading eventually to neoplasia or tumor formation On the other hand recent studies suggest that certain enzyme inhibitors from plant foods may prevent cancer formation in other tissues A key question therefore is whether inhibitors from plant foods constitute a human health hazard

Soll,2012-12-06 The highly structured eucaryotic cell with its complex division of biochemical labour requires a distinct protein complement in each cellular structure and compartment Nuclear coded and cytosolically synthesized polypeptides are specifically sorted to every corner of the cell in a post or co translational manner The presence of separate genomes and protein translation machineries in plastids and mitochondria requires further coordination not only on the transcriptional translational but also most likely on the protein import level Numerous different protein transport systems have developed and coexist within plant cells to ensure the specific and selective composition of every sub cellular compartment This volume summarizes the current knowledge on protein trafficking in plant cells Aside from the fundamental aspects in cell biology of how specific pre protein sorting and translocation across biological membranes is achieved a major focus is on transport modification and deposition of plant storage proteins The increasing use of plants as bioreactors to provide custom designed proteins of different usage requires detailed understanding of these events This text is directed not only at students and professionals in plant cell and molecular biology but also at those involved in horticulture and plant breeding It is intended to serve as a text and guide for graduate level courses on plant cell biology and as a valuable supplement to courses in plant physiology and development Scientists in other disciplines who wish to learn more about protein translocation in plants will also find this text an up to date source of information and reference Federation Proceedings Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology,1986
