also valued and even cultivated as a vehicle for shaping one's status. People had to think about how to manage their fama which played an essential role in the medieval culture of appearances. At the same time, however, institutions such as law courts and the church, alarmed by the power of talk, sought increasingly to regulate it. Christian moral discourse, literary and visual representation, juristic manuals and court records reflected concern about talk. This book's authors consider how talk was created and entered into memory. They address such topics as fama's relation to secular law and the preoccupations of the church, its impact on women's lives and its capacity to shape the concept of literary authorship.

A Dreamer's Romance Judy Kouzel, 2006. Every Friday Jenny Sullivan cruised the shelves at a quaint bookstore searching for her weekend entertainment. Little did she know that the owner Brian McKenzie, a former lawyer, had given her the nickname Snow White. Brian left the law firm to follow his heart and open the book store. Unfortunately, Brian's 10-month-old marriage ended suddenly when his wife decided she preferred the lawyer in him. Heartbroken, Brian threw himself into building up his business and restoring his fixer-upper row house. Now, mystery lover Jenny has peaked his interest and is making his life seem exciting again. He hires her to paint murals in the store because she is talented and to spend more time with her. Jenny is friends with the local mystery writer Anna Waters. Because of Jenny's talent with a paintbrush and Anna's brilliant new novel, the once small bookstore quickly became the hottest spot in town. But Brian's ex won't seem to go away as his attraction to Jenny begins to grow.

The Power of a Woman's Voice in Medieval and Early Modern Literatures Albrecht Classen, 2012-02-13. The study takes the received view among scholars that women in the Middle Ages were faced with sustained misogyny and that their voices were seldom heard in public and subjects it to a critical analysis. The ten chapters deal with various aspects of the question and the voices of a variety of authors, both female and male, are heard. The study opens with an enquiry into violence against women, including in texts by male writers Hartmann von Aue, Gottfried von Straßburg, Wolfram von Eschenbach, which indeed describe instances of violence but adopt an extremely critical stance towards them. It then proceeds to show how women were able to develop an independent identity in various genres and could present themselves as authorities in the public eye. Mystic texts by Hildegard of Bingen, Marie de France and Margery Kempe, the medieval conduct poem known as Die Winsbeckin, the Devout Books of Sisters composed in convents in South West Germany, but also quasi-historical documents such as the memoirs of Helene Kottaner or Anna Weckerin's cookery book demonstrate that far more women were in the public gaze than had hitherto been assumed and that they possessed the self-confidence to establish their positions with their intellectual and their literary achievements.
