Integrated Environmental Modelling: Design and Tools F.M. Brouwer, 2012-12-06. In the mid 1980s, while a student at the department of econometrics at the Free University, I became an assistant at the Institute for Environmental Studies (IvM) of this university. My main task was assisting with the computational aspects of the project: an integrated environmental model, a case study in the Markiezaat area. A number of methodological problems were formulated during the operationalization phase of that project, such as the need to develop systematically an integrated model design and to look for means of handling different sources of information. Prof. Dr. P. Nijkamp of the Department of Regional Economics and Drs. L. Hordijk at that time, leader of the economic technological research group at the IvM, therefore initiated a project proposal to be supported by the Netherlands Organisation for the Advancement of Pure Research (ZWO). Meanwhile, I became an assistant to Prof. Dr. P. Nijkamp, surveying qualitative statistical developments in the field of regional inequality analysis. This inventory has been shown to be a relevant basis for the preparation of this book. In spring 1982, I began working at IvM on the above project on integrated environmental modelling.

Rural Resource Development M. C. Whitby, K. G. Willis, 2017-09-05. Originally published in 1978, the question of how best to use our various resources has become one of crucial importance as we face today's many economic problems. In this second edition, the authors are concerned with decisions on rural issues in a climate of financial cutbacks, which emphasise the need for identifying the most efficient public choices. With a refreshing directness, they consider immediate problems of rural resources, such as the growth of the public sector, fluctuating commodity prices, dislocation in the land market, pollution, recreation pressure, and modernisation of an outdated settlement structure. In Part one, chapters deal in turn with the economics of public decisions, the application of quantitative models in the development context the planning system as it applies to rural areas and the problems of conserving the rural environment Part two deals with the individual topics land use and conversion to other uses recreational use of the countryside conservation economics rural population the labour market and farm policies rural transport and rural settlement The authors conclude with an examination of the Cow Green Reservoir as a case study of a rural public issue which had to be resolved This revised and considerably expanded edition focusses specifically on the economic aspects of the subject and provides further illustrations diagrams and examples

Globalization and Regional Economic Modeling Russel Cooper, Kieran Donaghy, Geoffrey Hewings, 2007-09-23 Globalization is affecting regional economies in a broad spectrum of aspects from labor market conditions and development policies to climate change To understand better how this works we need both conceptual and methodological contributions We need new schemes to organize our thinking direct our attention and frame thought experiments on the basis of which guidance may be offered And we need methodological innovations that enable us to carry out studies and thought experiments at levels of spatial and temporal resolution and formal complexity adequate to capture and account for the phenomena that characterize globalization The chapters of this volume written by an international cast of eminent regional scientists represent contributions of both types in many cases introducing and demonstrating the use of new tools for analyzing and understanding enormous changes underway in regional economies around the world

Interpreting Rurality Gary Bosworth,Peter Somerville,2013-10-15 The British countryside is a national institution most people aspire to live there many people use it for leisure and recreation and we can all watch rural life played out on our television screen read about it in novels or consume its imagery in art and cinematography The aim of this book is to explore the way that these aspirations and perceptions influence the way that the term rural is interpreted across different academic disciplines Definitions of rural are not exact leaving room for these interpretations to have a significant impact on the meanings conveyed in different areas of research and across different economic social and spatial contexts In this book contributors present research across a range of subjects allowing critical reflections upon their personal and disciplinary interpretations of rural This resulting volume is a collection of diverse chapters that gives an emergent sense of how the notion of rural changes and blurs as the disciplinary lens is adjusted In drawing together these strands it becomes clear that human relations with rural space morph materiality into highly complex representations wherein both disadvantage and social exclusion persist within a rurality that is also commodified consumed and cherished
