Happiness and Economic Growth Andrew E. Clark, Claudia Senik, 2014-11-20 This volume arising from a PSE CEPREMAP DIMeco conference includes contributions by some of the best known researchers in happiness economics and development economics including Richard Easterlin who gave his name to the Easterlin paradox that GDP growth does not improve happiness over the long run Many chapters underline the difficulty of increasing well being in developing countries including China even in the presence of sustained income growth This is notably due to the importance of income comparisons to others adaptation so that we get used to higher income and the growing inequality of income In particular rank in the local income distribution is shown to be important creating a beggar thy neighbour effect in happiness Wealth comparisons in China are exacerbated by the gender imbalance as the competition for brides creates a striking phenomenon of conspicuous consumption on the housing market Policy has to be aware of these effects This applies in particular to those who try to use self reported subjective well being in order to generate a social subjective poverty line which is a key issue in developing countries However the news is not only bad from the point of view of developing countries One piece of good news is that GDP growth often seems to go hand in hand with lower happiness inequality and thereby reduces the risk of extreme unhappiness
