Rural Financial Markets In Developing Countries:

Rural Financial Markets in Developing Countries Von Pischke, J. D., Dale W. Adams, Gordon Donald, 1983 Until recently the use of agricultural credit as a developmental tool seemed clear and straightforward Most concerned people believed that increases in the volume of cheap credit were necessary to boost agricultural production and that the rural poor could be brought into the mainstream of development through supervised credit programs It seemed that certain ideal types of rural credit institutions offered the promise of meeting farmers credit needs and that experience in the industrialized countries with cooperatives and specialized agricultural finance institutions could be effectively transplanted to low income countries This collection of readings highlights facets of rural financial markets that have often been neglected in discussions of agricultural credit in developing countries It moves beyond a narrow concern with the simple provision of credit to a broad consideration of the performance of rural financial markets and of ways to improve the quality and range of financial services for low income farmers It reflects new thinking on the design administration evaluation and policy framework of rural finance and credit programs in developing countries

Handbook of Agricultural Economics Robert E. Evenson, Prabhu Pingali, 2007-06-28 Volume 3 of this series of the Handbooks in Economics follows on from the previous two volumes by focusing on the fundamental concepts of agricultural economics The first part of the volume examines the developments in human resources and technology mastery The second part follows on by considering the processes and impact of invention and innovation in this field The effects of market forces are examined in the third part and the volume concludes by analysing the economics of our changing natural resources including the past effects of climate change Overall this volume forms a comprehensive and accessible survey of the field of agricultural economics and is recommended reading for anyone with an interest either academic or professional in this area Part of the renowned Handbooks in Economics series Contributors are leaders of their areas International in scope and comprehensive in coverage Searching for Sustainable Microfinance R. Marisol Ravicz,1998 Handbook of Development Economics Hollis Burnley Chenery,J. Behrman,T.N. Srinivasan,1988 Handbooks of development economics edit Chenery v 1 Institutional Finance for Agricultural Development Bhupat Maganlal Desai,1993 Agricultural and rural credit in the developing countries Private irrigation in Sub-Saharan Africa: regional Seminar on Private Sector Participation and Irrigation Expansion in Sub-Saharan Africa, Accra, Ghana, 22-26 October 2001 Hilmy Sally,Charles L. Abernethy,2011-10-21 Only 4 percent of arable land in sub Saharan Africa is irrigated using just 2 percent of the available water resources Furthermore 18 percent of the area equipped for irrigation is not utilized at all and the intensity of use varies between 50 percent and 80 percent This highlights the huge potential available for intensifying and expanding irrigated area provided that the investments required can be successfully mobilized However it must be noted that if investments in irrigation are to yield satisfactory returns investments must also be made in a series of related activities Current global figures for the amount of private investment in irrigation confirm that good returns can indeed be achieved Prospects for sub Saharan Africa would be far more favorable if public development assistance particularly foreign direct investments did not show declining trends
