Making Of Canadian Food Aid Policy:

The Making of Canadian Food Aid Policy Mark William Charlton, 1992 Since the Colombo Plan in the early 1950s food aid has been an important and highly visible component of the Canadian development assistance program Until the early 1970s however the Canadian food aid program was little more than a loosely connected collection of disparate programs designed to meet a host of sometimes conflicting objectives In the wake of the world food crisis of 1972-75 a growing number of groups began to question the developmental effectiveness of food aid In response the Canadian government undertook an extensive review and assessment of its food aid program which resulted in a series of new policy initiatives designed to change both the substance of food aid programs and the manner in which they were administered These changes marked a watershed in the history of the Canadian food aid program setting out the fundamental policy themes that have been consolidated and refined in the 1980s and early 1990s Mark Charlton examines the evolution of the Canadian food aid program during this critical period of policy reform Focusing on the rationale of the food aid program the nature of the planning and programming process the selection of delivery channels the make up of the food aid commodity basket and the nature of donor recipient relations Charlton provides useful insights into the overall objectives and priorities of Canadian foreign policy in the developing world He also reveals the impact of domestic economic interests Canadian political culture bureaucratic politics and the global food aid regime on the evolution of Canadian aid policies Canadian International Development Assistance Policies Cranford Pratt, 1996 For 25 years Canadians have argued whether the Canadian International Development Agency is the primary vehicle for helping basic human and development needs of the poorest countries and people or a tool for commercial exploitation and foreign policy Contributors from the government development organizations and academia analyze the components of Canadian aid the issues the agency has to deal with and the pressures it responds to Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR

Food Aid After Fifty Years Christopher B. Barrett, Dan Maxwell, 2007-05-07 This book analyzes the impact food aid programmes have had over the past fifty years assessing the current situation as well as future prospects Issues such as political expediency the impact of international trade and exchange rates are put under the microscope to provide the reader with a greater understanding of this important subject matter This book will prove vital to students of development economics and development studies and those working in the field Canada First, Not Canada Alone Adam Chapnick, Professor of Defence Studies Adam Chapnick, Asa McKercher, Assistant Professor of History Asa McKercher, 2024 The definitive history of Canadian foreign policy since the 1930s Canada First Not Canada Alone examines how successive prime ministers have promoted Canada's national interests in a world that has grown increasingly complex and interconnected Case studies focused on environmental reform Indigenous peoples trade hostage diplomacy and wartime strategy illustrate the breadth of issues that shape Canada's global realm Drawing from extensive primary and secondary research Adam Chapnick and Asa McKercher offer a fresh take on how Canada positions itself in the world Hunger in the Balance Jennifer Clapp, 2015-10-27 Food aid has become a contentious issue in recent decades with sharp disagreements over genetically modified crops agricultural subsidies and ways of guaranteeing food security in the face of successive global food crises In Hunger in the Balance Jennifer Clapp provides a timely and comprehensive account of the contemporary politics of food aid explaining the origins and outcomes of recent clashes between donor nations and between donors and recipients She identifies fundamental disputes between donors over tied food aid which requires that food be sourced in the donor country versus untied aid which provides cash to purchase food closer to the source of hunger These debates have been especially intense between the major food aid donors particularly the European Union and the United States Similarly the EU's rejection of GMO agricultural imports has raised concerns among recipients about accepting GMO foodstuffs from the United States For the several hundred million people who at present have little choice but to rely on food aid for their daily survival Clapp concludes the consequences of these political differences are profound Canada Among Nations, 2009-2010 Fen Hampson, Fen Osler Hampson, Paul Heinbecker, Norman Paterson School of International Affairs, 2010 Marking the 25th anniversary of the series Canada Among Nations 2009 focuses on how leading foreign and Canadian thinkers and doers assess Canada's prospects in a world in which the US will become more pre eminent and predominant The rise of China India Russia and Brazil as well as the increased significance of Europe and the further development of Africa are all transforming the context in which Canadians live Given the change in the tone style and substance of American foreign policy and the need to deal with unprecedented international financial problems and global economic retreat the topic of this volume is especially timely Canada will need to formulate sound policies on key issues such as energy and environmental sustainability nuclear nonproliferation human rights and trade and investment in key areas such as Afghanistan and the Middle East Astute bilateral diplomacy and constructive engagement in multilateral forums such as the United Nations and the G20 will be crucial to Canada's success Contributors to this volume critique Canada's performance on the world stage offering advice on initiatives Canada can take in its own and in the common interest Transforming

Development Jim Freedman, 2000-01-01 Foreign aid is now known more for its failures than its successes leading to claims in academic and policy circles that foreign aid has outlived its usefulness Instead of foreseeing the end of foreign these essays show how it might be restored Uniting on Food Assistance Christopher Barrett, Julia Steets, 2011-12-20 This book chronicles the most essential causes and implications of these trends which have expanded international food assistance well beyond the simple shipment of donated food aid commodities We pay particular attention to how these trends shape and are shaped by European Union EU and United States U S food assistance policy and practice and highlight the principles to which donors can adhere to move international food assistance forward Food and Culture Carole Counihan, Penny Van Esterik, 2013 This reader reveals how food habits and beliefs both present a microcosm of any culture and contribute to our understanding of human behaviour Particular attention is given to how men and women define themselves differently through food choices
