Protecting The American Homeland:

Protecting the American Homeland Michael E. O'Hanlon, Peter R. Orszag, Ivo H. Daalder, 2011-10-25 A good deal has been done to improve the safety of Americans on their own soil since the attacks of September 11 2001 Yet there have been numerous setbacks The Bush administration and Congress wasted at least six months in 2002 due to partisan disagreement over a new budget for homeland security and as one consequence resources were slow to reach first responders across the country Most improvements in homeland security have focused on refighting the last war improving defenses against attacks similar to those the country has already suffered Not enough has been done to anticipate possible new kinds of terrorist actions Policymakers have also focused too much attention on the creation of a department of homeland security rather than identifying and addressing the kinds of threats to which the country remains vulnerable While the creation of a cabinet level agency focusing on homeland security may have merit the authors of this study argue that the department will not in and of itself make Americans safer To the contrary the complexity of merging so many disparate agencies threatens to distract Congress and the administration from other more urgent security efforts This second edition of Protecting the American Homeland urges policymakers to focus on filling key gaps that remain in the current homeland security effort identifying better protection for private infrastructure using information technology to share intelligence and more effectively connect the dots that could hold hints to possible terrorist tactics expanding the capacities of the Coast Guard and Customs Service as well as airline transportation security dealing with the possible threat of surface to air missiles to airliners and encouraging better coordination among intelligence agencies While acknowledging the impossibility of preventing every possible type of terrorist violence the authors recommend a more systematic approach to homeland security that focuses

Protecting the American Homeland Michael E. O'Hanlon, Peter R. Orszag, Ivo H. Daalder, 2011-12-01 The September 11 attacks forcefully brought home the need to better protect the U S homeland But how can this be accomplished most effectively Here a team of Brookings scholars offers a four tier plan to guide and bolster the efforts under way by the Bush administration and Congress There has been some progress in making our homeland more secure But the authors are concerned that the Bush administration may focus too narrowly on preventing attacks like those of the recent past and believe a broader and more structured approach to ensuring homeland security is needed Given the vulnerability of our open society the authors recommend four clear lines of direction The first and last have received a good deal of attention from the Bush administration though not yet enough for the other two a great deal remains to be done Perimeter defense at the border to prevent entry by potential perpetrators and the weapons and hazardous materials they may use Prevention by detecting possible terrorists within the United States and securing dangerous materials they might obtain here Identification and defense of key sites within the county population centers critical economic assets and infrastructure and locations of key political or symbolic importance Consequence management to give those directly involved in responding to an attack that may nevertheless occur the tools necessary to quickly identify and attack and limit its damage Included are specific recommendations on how much more to spend on homeland security how much of the cost should be borne by the private sector and how to structure the federal government to make the responsible agencies more efficient in addressing security concerns Specifically the authors believe that annual federal spending on homeland security may need to grow to about 45 billion relative to a 2001 level of less than 20 billion and a Bush administration proposed budget for 2003 of 38 billion They also

The Sanctimonious Psychoproctological Invasions: The Handbook for Political Analysis The Reverend Dr. Len Bergantino, ED. D, PH.D., 2019-10-24 The Sanctimonious Psychoproctological Invasions By The Reverend Dr Len Bergantino ED D PH D From 2012 through 2018 Len Bergantino began each day with pro bono writings and invasive interventions that insist and expand upon the first amendment rights of United States citizens In all areas he is both knowledgeable and feels national state and local governments are stuck in socially immobile positions He created ways to invade entire cultures and governments to move those stuck in quicksand off the dime and into a society that spirals upward He refers to the creation of these methods as sanctimonious psychoprotological invasions in the creation of a political psychology that should be studied by all human beings who want to make a difference and give meaning to their lives Protecting America From The Threat Of ISIS, Senate Hrg. 114-690, May 26, 2016, 114-2, 2017 Homeland Security and Federalism Matt A. Mayer, 2009 Argues that the federal model of homeland security is failing and promotes a model that restores power to the nation's governors and mayors and that will be less costly and more successful Defining Law Enforcement's Role in Protecting American Agriculture from

Agro-Terrorism Terry Knowles, 2011 This is a print on demand edition of a hard to find publication American agriculture represents a soft target for terrorists The single greatest threat to our agricultural economy is foot and mouth disease FMD An outbreak of this highly contagious viral disease would have a catastrophic effect including cessation of beef exports full scale quarantines possible destruction of millions of animals stop movement orders and economic chaos Five primary groups are considered to be threats to agriculture international terrorists domestic terrorists militant animal rights groups economic opportunists and disgruntled employees This in depth study determined law enforcement's role in protecting against acts of agro terrorism Conclusion Law enforcement has insufficient resources to adequately respond to a FMD outbreak

Military Strategy of Great Powers Håkan Edström, Jacob Westberg, 2021-09-20 This book explores the military strategies of the five system determining great powers during the twenty first century The book's point of departure is that analyses of countries defence strategies should acknowledge that states come in various shapes and sizes and that their strategic choices are affected by their perceptions of their position in the international system and by power asymmetries between more and less resourceful states This creates a diversity in strategies that is often overlooked in theoretically oriented analyses The book examines how five major powers the United States China the United Kingdom France and Russia have adjusted their strategies to improve or maintain their relative position and to manage power asymmetries during the twenty first century It also develops and applies an analytical framework for exploring and categorising the strategies pursued by the five major powers which combines elements of structural realism with research on power transition theory and status competition The concluding chapter addresses questions related to stability and change in the present international system This book will be of interest to students of strategic studies foreign policy and International Relations
