H. Bourne, 1983-01-13 Plants in Human Health and Nutrition Policy Artemis P. Simopoulos, C. Gopalan, 2003-01-01 The present volume includes a series of studies on edible wild plants and their impact on human health Today the diet of developed societies is limited to a few cultivated vegetables while the developing countries often lack an adequate supply of micronutrients Wild plants contain antioxidant omega 3 fatty acid and micronutrient components that contribute to both a decrease in the risk for chronic diseases as well as the reduction of nutritional deficiencies Thus they address many diet related problems at both ends of the socioeconomic spectrum Results from research provide data on the composition of indigenous plants from various areas of the world and show that consumption of green leafy vegetables corrects deficiencies successfully The book also deals with nutrition policy integrating indigenous foods against micronutrient deficiency Implementation of scientific evidence is an essential precondition for improving nutrition policy Nutritionists food producers botanists agronomists food technologists pharmacologists as well as all professionals involved with food policy and human development will find in this book a valuable and updated basis for their work Nutrition Policy Implementation Nevin S. Scrimshaw, Mitchel B. Wallerstein, 2012-12-06 The MIT International Nutrition Planning Program INP was initiated in the fall of 1972 with a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation later supplemented by funds from USAID under the 2110 Program Conceived as a multidisciplinary undertaking the INP was a joint effort of the Department of Nutrition and Food Science and the Center for International Studies at MIT that also included representatives of the Departments of Economics Political Science Urban Studies Humanities Anthropology and Civil Engineering It has been successful in attracting graduate students and conducting research on various international food and nutrition problems including the design of intervention programs A condition of the original grant from the Rockefeller Foundation was the organization of a meeting to summarize and evaluate the progress of the program It was ultimately decided that the best approach would be a workshop that would attempt to assess what had been learned about the implementation of food and nutrition policies since the start of the INP Out of concern for food and nutrition policy issues the World Hunger Programme of The United Nations University UNU and the Ford Foundation also agreed to cosponsor the workshop Catalog Food and Nutrition Information Center (U.S.), 1973 National Nutrition Policy Study, 1974 United States.
