'Come Mothers and Fathers
Throughout the land
And don't criticize
What you don't understand;
Your sons and your daughters
Are beyond your command . . . ' — Bob Dylan

This collection of essays is concerned with the causes of discontent, the manifestation of discontent and the methods of protest, dealing mostly with present issues and the protest of the young.

These themes are considered from various points of view and Arthur Koestler, Professor David Rapoport and Douglas Houghton, M.P., are amongst the contributors. The youth rebellion of America, India, Japan and France is described, and the discussion on Britain includes reference to the trade-union movement and Parliament itself.

The collection has been assembled by the editors of the Political Quarterly and makes a work of immediate and impressive relevance on a subject that is clearly of vital importance to the whole structure of society and to our way of life today.
