

PROUST and THREE DIALOGUES

(with Georges Duthuit)

SAMUEL BECKETT

In his foreword, the author says, "There is no allusion to the legendary life and death of Marcel Proust, nor to the garrulous old dowager of the Letters, nor to the poet, nor to the author of the Essays, nor to the Eau de Selzian correlative of Carlyle's "beautiful bottle of soda water" ". In other words this is a critical study of Proust the novelist, the first great European novelist of the century, and it is fitting that he should be put under the microscopic eye of Samuel Beckett, probably the outstanding novelist of the present time. This is the first English reprint of a study that first appeared in 1931 when the author as a young man had published no prose and was completely unknown except to a circle of friends. The breadth and maturity of this cool look at Proust is therefore all the more remarkable and the author's highly original approach is evident from the first page.

This volume also contains three dialogues which Mr. Beckett wrote down from memory in 1949, a record of discussions between himself and Georges Duthuit, the editor of the experimental review Transition. The dialogues deal with three painters, Tal Coat, André Masson and Bram Van Velde. Although each dialogue starts from a consideration of the style and intentions of the painter under discussion, the implications are much wider and deal ultimately with the purpose and the nature of art with the author generously allowing his adversary to stun him into silence on each occasion. The dialogues will tell the reader a great deal about Mr. Beckett and they offer a key to much of his own work.

Theatre on Trial Anna

McMullan, 2021-05-18 This book first published in 1993 is the first full length analysis of Samuel Beckett's later drama in the context of contemporary critical and performance theory It employs a close textual examination of the later plays as a springboard for exploring ideas around authority gender and the ideology of performance Recent work in the world of critical theory has suggested new ways of looking at performance practice McMullan argues that while contemporary theory can deepen our understanding of Beckett's dramatic practice his drama places performance in the context of a metaphysical history and a metatheatrical tradition thereby confronting and provoking some of the central debates in performance studies engagement with critical theory

Beckett, Lacan and the Mathematical Writing of the Real Arka

Chattopadhyay, 2019-01-01 Beckett Lacan and the Mathematical Writing of the Real proposes writing as a mathematical and logical operation to build a bridge between Lacanian psychoanalysis and Samuel Beckett's prose works Arka Chattopadhyay studies aspects such as the fundamental operational logic of a text use of mathematical forms like geometry and arithmetic the human obsession with counting the moving body as an act of writing and love and sexuality as a challenge to the limits of what can be written through logic and mathematics Chattopadhyay reads Beckett's prose works including How It Is Company Worstward Ho Malone Dies and Enough to highlight this terminal writing which halts endless meanings with the material body of the word and gives Beckett a medium to inscribe what cannot be written otherwise
