Jewish Women Katharina Galor, 2023-12-15 Jewish Women Between Conformity and Agency examines the concepts of gender and sexuality through the primary lens of visual and material culture from antiquity through to the present day The backbone of this transhistorical and transcontextual study is the question of Jewish women's agency in four different geographical chronological and methodological contexts beginning with women's dress codes in Roman Byzantine Syro Palestine continuing with rituals of purity in medieval Ashkenaz worship in papal Avignon and the Comtat Venaissin and ending with marriage and divorce in Israeli film Each of these explorations is interested in creating a dialogue between the patriarchal legacy of the traditional texts and the chronologically corresponding visual and material culture The author challenges traditional approaches to the study of Jewish culture by employing tools from art history archaeology and film and media studies In each of these different contexts there is ample evidence that women despite persistent overall structural discrimination have found ways to challenge male constructs of gender norms Ultimately these examples from past and present times highlight women's eminence in shaping Jewish history and culture Bringing a new interdisciplinary lens to the study of the history of gender and sexuality the book will be of interest to students and researchers of Jewish history and culture art history archaeology and film studies

Change, Transformation and Development J. Stan Metcalfe, Uwe Cantner, 2012-12-06 For as long as one can remember the edifice of the neoclassical economic synthesis has been under attack. Critiques have focused on the extreme unreality of the assumptions that underpin the Arrow-Debreu theorems of welfare economics. They have queried the excessive formalism of the edifice and the lack of practical significance of many of the results. They have castigated the neoclassical synthesis for its internal incoherence, lacking an independent theory of capital, for example, one of the favorite topics of the Cambridge school, its lack of a dynamic element, its non-evolutionary character, its lack of any conception of market process, and so the list could be continued. Blaug (1997) says: "Through all this the neoclassical synthesis remains as strong as ever, impervious to these or any other attacks." In this paper, a different tack is taken. The neoclassical edifice is left alone, standing as a representation of what goes on in a certain kind of economy, namely, the economy where goods and services are produced and exchanged. The paper then introduces another kind of economy, namely, an economy of productive entities called resources that are needed to produce the economy of goods and services.

Dynamics Of Regional Innovation, The: Policy Challenges In Europe And Japan Yveline Lecler, Tetsuo Yoshimoto, Takahiro Fujimoto, 2011-12-20. All over the world, open innovation is emerging and requires much more interactions between different actors with different organizational cultures: large firms and SMEs, i.e. industry, universities and research institutions, i.e. academia, as well as national and regional authorities for building the legal or incentive framework of innovation, i.e. government. Certainly, flows of knowledge between these three spheres, which are also known as the triple helix, have always existed, but what appears to be new in an open innovation environment is the overlapping of their missions. In many areas, such multi-actor interactions with overlapping roles did not emerge spontaneously, as was the case with the United States. Based on robust cases studied by researchers and practical experiences of personnel involved in innovation at public or private institutions, this book successively discusses the policy framework in Europe and Japan, the new role for universities due to intellectual property reform or technology transfer promotion, the new challenges for firms in terms of licensing, patents, corporate venturing, including entrepreneurship, incubation, venture capital, or cross-industry knowledge sharing. All issues addressed in this book are clearly those toward regional innovation policies and practices that are open in nature. It contains descriptions and analysis of the various approaches taken by industrial, governmental, and academic players in various regions of Japan (Tohoku, Tokyo) and Europe (France, Belgium). The mix of theoretical and empirical material collected in this book was first presented at an international symposium in Tokyo. The dynamics of regional innovation is an on-going issue, and we are still standing at the threshold of this field of research. It is exactly why such a book is needed now.
