Pseira The Pseira Cemetery The Surface Survey Prehistory Monographs 5:

The Minoan Shipwreck at Pseira, Crete Elpidia Hadjidaki-Marder, 2021-06-15 The excavation of a Minoan shipwreck dated to 1725-1700 BC is described. The cargo includes the largest known corpus of complete and almost complete clay vessels from a single Middle Minoan IIB deposit. The transport boat provides interesting information on a society that revolved around seafaring. The Dams and Water Management Systems of Minoan Pseira Philip P. Betancourt, 2012-12-31

Excavations at the Bronze Age seaport on Pseira Island uncovered the remains of sophisticated water retention systems that included the addition of retaining walls to prevent erosion, massive dams with associated reservoirs, and small check dams to ravines that reached over one hundred meters in length in order to control water runoff and make it available for human use. Agriculture was one of the cornerstones of the Bronze Age Cretan economy, and it is no surprise that the ancient inhabitants of the island went to great lengths to control water runoff and make it available for human use. Despite the application of traditional archaeological survey methods, the full extent of the water management systems was not understood fully as the island's rugged topography prevented intensive and thorough survey of many places. The use of a differential Global Positioning System (dGPS) unit provided the opportunity to take a fresh look at the evidence for water management on the island. The results of this study contribute substantial amounts of new information on the little-known subject of Minoan water conservation and control. Pseira X Philip P. Betancourt, 2009-12-31

This book is the tenth volume in the series of excavation reports about the harbor town of Pseira, which is located on the island of the same name just off the northeast coast of Crete. The book focuses on the excavation and interpretation of the architecture and material culture in Block AF. This southern group of buildings is one of the most important areas in the settlement because of its long succession of building phases. Block AF provides the fullest sequence of building phases from any one area at Pseira, with habitation extending from before MM II to LM III. It has examples of complex architectural details, including a pillar crypt, elaborate upstairs floors, a well-preserved U-shaped staircase, and a well-designed kitchen, all of which contribute significantly to our knowledge of East Cretan building practices. In addition to domestic pottery, the houses furnish examples of stone tools, stone vessels, loom weights, inscriptions in Linear A, cult objects, animal bones, marine shells, and a wide range of material recovered from water sieving. This latter category, with burned grain, fish bones, shells, and other categories of materials, fills many gaps in our knowledge of Pseiran life. Philistor Philip P. Betancourt, Eleni Mantzourani, 2012-09-30

Contributions by 37 scholars are brought together here to create a volume in honor of the long and fruitful career of Costis Davaras, former Ephor of Crete and Professor Emeritus of Minoan Archaeology at the University of Athens. Articles pertain to Bronze Age Crete and include mortuary studies, experimental archaeology, numerous artifactual studies, and discussions on the greater Minoan civilization. Pseira VI Philip P. Betancourt, Costis Davaras, 2002-12-31 Richard B. Seager excavated the Minoan cemetery at Pseira in 1907, but the work was never published. The Temple University excavations, 1985-1994, under the direction of Philip

P Betancourt and Costis Davaras conducted an intensive surface survey of the cemetery area cleaned and drew plans of all visible tombs and excavated tombs that had not been previously excavated The results of the cemetery excavations on the small island off the northeast coast of Crete are published in two volumes Pseira VI publishes the methodology that was employed for the investigation the topography of the cemetery area the little that can be reconstructed of Seager s campaign the ceramic petrography for the cemetery pottery and the results of the intensive surface survey The survey shows that the cemetery was first used in the Neolithic period and it was abandoned in Middle Minoan II before the expansion of the nearby town in LM I It also demonstrates that the cemetery was larger than the area suggested by the 33 tombs found by Seager and it shows that the customs included burial in jars even though no examples have been excavated Prehistoric Crete

Joanne M. Murphy,2011-06-15 Since the inception of Minoan archaeology studies pertaining to tombs and tomb deposits have played seminal roles in our understanding of Minoan culture and the reconstruction of Bronze Age society For several geographical areas and chronological periods of Cretan history tombs are the most abundant source of data Each author in this volume takes a clear and distinct approach to the data including some that emphasize political geography on multi regional and multi scalar levels some that examine the commemoration of the dead and of the community for legitimizing purposes but also for maintaining and or creating elite positions in social systems and others that underline the overlap between mortuary rituals and religion The aim of this volume is not to present all tombs in all periods on Crete comprehensively but the breadth of these papers is intended generate a discourse not just among archaeologists working in different areas and time periods on Crete but also among archaeologists in Greece and a broader anthropological audience

Aphrodite's Kephali Philip P. Betancourt,2013-10-15 The small site of Aphrodite s Kephali among several other Minoan and later sites took advantage of the valley topography in the Isthmus of Ierapetra in eastern Crete by establishing themselves along the nearby hills resulting in easy access to the natural trade route between the Aegean and the Libyan Seas A discussion of the architecture artifacts and ecofacts are presented from the excavation of this Early Minoan I watchtower The conclusions challenge some of the commonly held views about Crete in the third millennium B C It is suggested that rather than being a precursor to a socially complex state that would arise later early polities involving several communities probably already existed in the isthmus during the EM I period Social and economic differentiation existed on a regional not just a local level and decisions for mutual defense could involve collaboration by groups of workers including the building of the watchtower that is the focus of this volume Final Neolithic Crete and the Southeast Aegean Krzysztof

Nowicki,2014-08-19 This book presents an archaeological study of Crete in transition from the Neolithic to the Early Bronze Age c 4000 to 3000 BC within the broader South Aegean context The study based on the author s own fieldwork contains a gazetteer of over 170 sites The material from these sites will prompt archaeologists in Greece Turkey and the Middle East to reconsider their understanding of the foundation of Bronze Age civilization in the Aegean Alatzomouri Pefka Vili

Apostolakou, Philip P. Betancourt, Thomas M. Brogan, 2021-02-15 Excavation of an important site for the early history of dyeing in Minoan Crete revealed a Middle Bronze Age natural dye workshop with several basins carved into bedrock pottery and stone vessels stone tools and animal and plant remains The evidence contributes new information on the Minoan trade in textiles during the Old Palace period The Chrysokamino Metallurgy Workshop and Its Territory Philip P.

Betancourt, 2006 This detailed report describes archaeological fieldwork conducted between 1995 and 1997 in rural northeast Crete Excavations were made in two locations a metallurgy workshop abandoned in EM III and a nearby rural habitation site perhaps a farmhouse used until LM III An intensive survey of the vicinity revealed other activities in the area from the Early Neolithic onwards and placed the sites in a micro regional context A publication of the Minoan farmhouse will appear subsequently but this volume stands on its own as both an overview of the project and as a detailed study of the copper smelting workshop The Hagia Photia Cemetery II Philip P. Betancourt, Costis Davaras, 2012-12-31 The publication of the Hagia Photia Cemetery is planned in three volumes The first volume which has already been published Davaras and Betancourt 2004 presented the tomb groups and the architecture The second volume about the excavation of the Hagia Photia cemetery focuses on the pottery The third volume will present the obsidian stone finds metal objects and other discoveries The Early Minoan I tombs at Hagia Photia included the largest assemblage of vessels in Cycladic style known from Crete as well as vases from production workshops in Crete The pottery is extremely important for several reasons including the definition of the EM I ceramic styles that were being used as funerary offerings in this part of Crete the establishment of the chronological synchronisms between Crete and the Cyclades and information on the history of the Minoan pottery industry When compared with other deposits from EM I Crete the pottery helps to establish a better understanding of the ceramic development within the first Minoan time period Water Supply and Water Management in the Metal Ages Dirk Brandherm, Thomas Zimmermann, 2024-11-21 Proceedings from the 2022 Metal Ages colloquium in Ankara Topics include water supply and management copper metallurgy pottery and combat techniques spanning the Chalcolithic to Late Iron Age across Iran to Iberia with a focus on artefact archaeometry Hagios Charalambos Philip P. Betancourt, 2014-12-31 This is the first of five planned volumes to present the primary archaeological report about the excavation of the cave of Hagios Charalambos in eastern Crete The Minoans used this small cavern as an ossuary for the secondary burial of human remains and grave goods primarily during the Early and Middle Bronze Age The geography and geology surrounding the cave is discussed along with the methodology of the excavation A portion of the pottery and all of the small finds are presented with many illustrations The Alatzomouri Rock Shelter Vili Apostolakou, Philip P.

Betancourt, Thomas M. Brogan, 2017-09-30 This handsome volume describes and illustrates the excavation of an artificial rock shelter in Crete Greece Minoan pottery and small finds such as stone tools loomweights and ecofactual remains were recovered The ceramics elucidate the style and chronology of East Cretan White on Dark Ware which dates to the end of the Early Bronze Age The Pseira Cemetery Philip P. Betancourt, 2002 Kavousi I Donald C. Haggis, 2005-12-30 Kavousi I is the initial volume of the Kavousi Excavation Series which presents the final report of the Kavousi Project a program of archaeological investigation near the modern village of Kavousi in eastern Crete Subsequent volumes will publish the results of the 1987 1992 excavations at the Vronta and Kastro sites in the Siteia Mountains overlooking Kavousi and of the cleaning and new study of the excavations of Harriet Boyd in 1900 and 1901 This volume Kavousi I The Archaeological Survey of the Kavousi Region provides a comprehensive look at the topography of the area its natural resources and the way in which the local people interacted with them over time as shown in the changing pattern of settlement It sets the stage for the report on the excavations and provides an introduction to the local soils and to the pottery classification used by the excavators The Bronze Age Begins Philip P. Betancourt, 2008-08-26 This book focuses on economic and social changes particularly during the opening phase of the Minoan civilization on the island of Crete New developments in ceramics that reached Crete at the end of the Neolithic period greatly contributed to the creation of economic technological social and religious advancements we call the Early Bronze Age The arguments are two fold a detailed explanation of the ceramics we call Early Minoan I and the differences that set it apart from its predecessors and an explanation of how these new and highly superior containers changed the storage transport and accumulation of a new form of wealth consisting primarily of processed agricultural and animal products like wine olive oil and various foods preserved in wine vinegar honey and other liquids The increased stability and security provided by an improved ability to store food from one year to the next would have a profound effect on the society Crafting Minoanisation Joanne Elizabeth Cutler, 2021-10-31 The mid second millennium BC material record of the southern Aegean shows evidence of strong Cretan influence This phenomenon has traditionally been seen in terms of Minoanisation but the nature and degree of Cretan influence and the process processes by which it was spread and adopted have been widely debated This new study addresses the question of Minoanisation through a study of the adoption of Cretan technologies in the wider southern Aegean principally weaving technology By the early Late Bronze Age Cretan style discoid loom weights had appeared at a number of settlements across the southern Aegean In most cases this represents not only the adoption of a particular type of loom weight but also the introduction of a new weaving technology the use of the warp weighted loom The evidence for and the implications of the adoption of this new technology is examined Drawing upon recent advances in textile experimental archaeology the types of textiles that are likely to have been produced at a range of sites both on Crete itself and in the wider southern Aegean are discussed and the likely nature and scale of textile production at the various settlements is assessed A consideration of the evidence for the timing and extent of the adoption of Cretan weaving technology in the light of additional evidence for the adoption of other Cretan technologies is used to gain insight into the potential social and economic strategies engaged in by various groups across the southern Aegean as well as the motivations that may have driven the adoption and adaptation of Cretan cultural traits and accompanying behaviors By examining how technological skills and techniques are learned and considering possible mechanisms for the transmission of such technical knowledge and know how new perspectives can be proposed concerning the processes through which Cretan techniques were taken up and imitated abroad Bramiana Vili Apostolakou, Philip Betancourt, Thomas Brogan, 2022-12-31

The Minoan site at Bramiana in southeastern Crete provides evidence for a Bronze Age economy based on trade agriculture and craftwork This publication uses a new system of organizing the pottery by petrography sorting it by materials and workshop practices revealing a trade network of cooking pots and other clay vessels and their contents Minoan Archaeology Sarah Cappel, Ute Gunkel-Maschek, Diamantis Panagiotopoulos, 2015-10-14 More than 100 years ago Sir Arthur Evans spade made the first cut into the earth above the now well known Palace at Knossos His research saw the birth of a new discipline Minoan Archaeology The present volume aim to outline current trends and prospects of this scientific field
