Pseudocarcinoma Of The Skin:

Pseudocarcinoma of the Skin Boris A. Berenbein, 2013-11-27 Among the circumstances that may cause a too late or erroneous diagnosis of skin cancer a most important one is the failure to distinguish a true squamous cell carcinoma of the skin from an atypical but benign epidermal hyperplasia which closely mimics the carcinoma clinically and particularly histologically so called pseudoepitheliomatous or pseudocarcinomatous hyperplasia Although there are many publications describing in detail the histologic features of pseudocarcinomatous hyperplasias which arise in various dermatoses or skin tumors this book appears to be the first attempt to cover the whole subject of pseudocarcinomatous epidermal hyperplasia by considering it not only in its clinical and histopathologic aspects but also from cytophysiologic and cytogenetic points of view in relation to squamous cell carcinoma On the basis of a review of the available literature and of my own correlative clinical histopathologic cytophysiologic and cytogenetic investigations in patients and experimental animals I propose a comprehensive set of criteria of difference and similarity between pseudocarcinoma and true carcinoma of the skin Hopefully these criteria will be found useful by physicians in the differential diagnosis between these conditions in cases of doubt and may likewise provide a stimulus to researchers for deliberation I also hope that this monograph which is a translation of a revised version of the text originally published in Russian in 1980 will serve our common cause of the fight against cancer I welcome suggestions regarding the choice and treatment of the material included in the book

Neoplastic Mimics in Dermatopathology Mark R. Wick, MD, James W. Patterson, MD, 2013-02-19 Neoplastic mimics or pseudotumors can simulate neoplasms on all levels of analysis clinical radiologic and pathologic and thus represent particular diagnostic pitfalls for the pathologist that can ultimately lead to therapeutic misdirection. Hundreds of color images and analysis of diagnostic mimics guide the pathologist through recognizing and distinguishing the unusual variants, morphologic anomalies and misleading features that may easily lead to an inaccurate interpretation and missed diagnosis. Since many of the entities described are uncommon, Neoplastic Mimics in Dermatopathology emphasizes imaging and clinical correlations throughout to support the pathologist as consultant to the entire diagnostic and clinical management team. Every pathologist who sees skin cases will find this book an invaluable working tool to ensure accurate diagnosis. This book provides the pathologist with detailed morphologic descriptions and diagnostic guidance in recognizing these neoplastic mimics as they occur in the skin. In addition, descriptions and diagnostic guidance are provided for the range of skin lesions that may mimic benign masses but are in fact neoplastic. Throughout the book, comparisons of neoplastic mimics with true neoplasms are provided at clinical, gross and histologic levels. In the presentation of every entity, the points that contribute to differential diagnosis are emphasized. Neoplastic Mimics in Dermatopathology Features Over 400 high quality images showcase the full range of nonneoplastic and neoplastic mimics in skin. Concise specific text descriptions make the book easy to use as a visual reference. Expert authors guide the reader to recognizing and distinguishing misleading specimens.

The Histology of Borderline Cancer W.W. Park, 2012-12-06. In essence, the pathologist is often enough in diagnosing cancer the last word rests with the pathologist and his or her microscope. The book is concerned with interpretation of the scope. Often enough, too, the pathologist is borderline or histologically equivocal case and thought to dispense absolute truth, he does his clinical implications thereof. It is based on best but the truth he dispenses is not absolute, so many examples of which most are individually rather with a greater or lesser degree of confidence described in brief. No useful purpose is served by giving in detail the clinical and pathologic probability of a certain kind of biological logical circumstances of every patient with say behaviour and the degree of confidence with a dubious lesion of endometrium or larynx or which he operates is based on experience. This with a similarly borderline papilloma in bladder experience is in turn based on the recollection or rectum for each of these lesions exemplifies of earlier events counsel from his mentors from a familiar and standard problem. Problems of his studies and from discussions with colleagues, this kind will be examined as such but not the. It would be going too far to agree with those details of every patient who posed them.
