Books in Print Supplement ,1988      Treatment of Child Abuse Robert M. Reece,Rochelle F. Hanson,John Sargent,2014-06-15 An essential evidence based reference book for mental health professionals and medical personnel working with victims of child abuse Acclaimed as a milestone resource by the Journal of Child and Family Studies Treatment of Child Abuse has been updated and expanded with ten completely new chapters The second edition adds the expertise of co editors Rochelle F Hanson Ph D and John Sargent M D along with chapters from many new contributors The second edition is organized by various modes of therapy different settings for therapies and the individualized needs of victims correlating to types of abuse and neglect The contributors describe evidence based and evidence supported treatments for traumatized children and adolescents information on research and theory underlying the interventions and explanations of treatment protocols The contributors focus particular attention on special populations and cultural differences Entire sections focus on medical care and legal interventions necessary for abused youth New and expanded material includes information on

Bullying Sanctuary Model of trauma informed care Long term medical management Appropriate use of psychopharmacology Importance of self care for professionals Treatment of Child Abuse is an important resource for mental health professionals family physicians pediatricians emergency department physicians physician assistants and nurses as well as child advocate professionals social workers and lawyers      The Health Care Setting As A Context for the Prevention and Treatment of Child Abuse Keith L. Kaufman,2014-10-13 This special issue was designed to explore the role of health care professionals in the assessment treatment and prevention of child maltreatment The initial five articles were solicited to enhance our understanding of various forms of child maltreatment as well as approaches designed to effectively respond to this difficult problem The final manuscripts in this issue represent a theoretical and empirical perspective on child maltreatment Medical settings represent a fertile arena for prevention as well as intervention initiatives Future research should further support clinical strategies via program evaluation and outcome studies and be aimed at enhancing our knowledge of the field and developing more comprehensive models to guide our efforts It is hoped that this issue will stimulate research in this area and provide additional support for clinical interventions in the field      The Role of Mental Health Professionals in the Prevention and Treatment of Child Abuse and Neglect Marilyn S. Peterson,1995-04 Provides a foundation for mental health professionals to broaden their roles responsibilities to discuss the issues that should be considered in the evaluation treatment of maltreated children their families May also be used by other professionals to increase their knowledge about the work of mental health professionals to improve the ability of all social services disciplines to work together collaboratively Bibliography glossary list of resources      Assessment of Parenting Dr Peter Reder,Clare Lucey,2014-02-04 These are the sorts of questions that face mental health practitioners who are increasingly involved in complex child care cases which come before the courts They have been given little guidance to date on how these assessments should be made especially where a decision has to be taken as to whether a child has experienced significant harm In this much needed book senior clinicians consider the principles and practice of parenting assessments and how they guide courts decisions about children s welfare They describe a number of frameworks for assessment and discuss the factors which help predict the risk of future maltreatment or the likelihood of successful rehabilitation Throughout the book the emphasis is on the need to integrate the assessments of all relevant professionals in order to serve the best interests of the child while also addressing the parents potential to improve their caretaking skills Offering guidance in areas of crucial significance for child family and professional alike Assessment of Parenting will be widely welcomed      The Psychological Assessment of Abused and Traumatized Children Francis D. Kelly,1999-03-01 The past decade has seen more and more clinicians involved in the assessment and treatment of abused and traumatized children They have contributed to an impressively large body of literature on the impact of abuse and trauma at all ages the focus of which has been the short and long term sequelae apparent in the child s behavior emotional experience and social interaction But there have been few efforts to investigate the ways in which abuse and trauma damage the intrapsychic systems and structures that often guide direct and inform the child's manifest adjustment and functioning. The need to redress the balance was the major impetus for this book. Kelly offers a clinical paradigm for the personality assessment of abused or traumatized children via projective instruments the TAT and Rorschach and shows how various projective measures and indices can be utilized as sensitive barometers of changes in self object and ego functioning following therapeutic interventions and other corrective experiences. But further integrating the tenets of trauma theory and those of psychoanalytic theory he sets this clinical paradigm in a meaningful theoretical context and draws on both theory and clinical experience to develop a comprehensive psychological composite of the child who has been maltreated. Part I provides an overview of theoretical models relevant to the assessment and diagnosis of the maltreated child. Contemporary psychoanalytic theory serves as one frame and is discussed first with particular emphasis on object relations and ego functions. Equal attention is devoted to developmental psychology as another frame. Part II reviews relevant research. The Mutuality of Autonomy Scale (MOA) and the Social Cognition and Object Relations Scale (SCORS) are introduced as examples of reliable and valid instruments readily employed to assess the impact of abuse or trauma on a child's object relations functioning. Additional Rorschach indices, boundary disturbance measures, thought disorder indices, trauma markers and defensive functions measures are discussed as measures of the impact on different facets of ego functioning. These various projective measures can be utilized as sensitive barometers of changes in self object and ego functioning following therapeutic interventions and other corrective experiences. Part III includes a variety of extended clinical illustrations. Seven cases of boys and girls subjected to varying degrees of abuse and trauma are presented to demonstrate the clinical utility of projective material for assessment, diagnosis and treatment planning. For the clinician who takes the idiographical phenomenological approach appropriate given the uniqueness of each situation of abuse or trauma and the frequent brevity and barrenness of the protocol, such material can open a window onto a rich vista of the child's psychological terrain. The resulting map can point the way to wise decisions about type, timing and level of therapeutic intervention. The resolution of such process issues as transference and countertransference plus additional questions. Two cases of adult women who were abused as children and find themselves continuing to struggle with enduring unresolved issues vis-à-vis their own children are also presented. These cases underscore the value of TAT and Rorschach material and object relations measures in assessing and understanding the abusive and potentially abusive parent.

Disaster and Trauma, An Issue of Child and Adolescent Psychiatric Clinics of North America Stephen J Cozza, 2014-04-28 An overview of childhood traumatic exposures and their impact for health care providers, child and adolescent psychiatrists, general psychiatrists, other pediatric behavioral health providers and primary care clinicians is presented. Most clinicians are unaware that children in the United States are exposed to trauma frequently either as a single occurrence or through repeated events. These exposures result in neurobiological, developmental and clinical sequelae that can undermine children's health and well-being. This issue describes the multiple types of traumatic exposures and their sequelae methods of screening and assessment and principles of effective prevention and clinical treatment The volume highlights areas of particular relevance to children such as natural disasters war domestic violence school and community violence sexual victimization and complex trauma Each is differentiated as a unique trauma requiring trauma informed systems of care to effectively meet the needs of the exposed population Since traumatic exposure results in added risk to child well being the third section of the volume describes strategies for primary prevention e g violence prevention and risk mitigation e g skill and resilience building strategies as well as reviews evidence based treatments for trauma induced clinical disorders
