This book explores the concept of Passion as a strong motivational force that can increase well being and quality of life. The authors focus on the importance of having passion in various areas of life to increase well being, life satisfaction, and promote meaning in life. They go on to present how we can find and increase passion supported by various psychological theories and research. Finally, the authors connect passion to expertise. They argue that it is essential to maintain passion during the process that leads to expertise, which is characterized as a long and demanding process that can be associated with negative consequences.

Law as Passion Miguel Nogueira de Brito, Carina Calabria, Fábio Portela L. Almeida, 2021-03-01. Inspired by the works of Professor Marcelo Neves, in this book, colleagues come together to explore how their research has been influenced by non-European and post-colonial approaches. With a foreword by Karl Heinz Ladeur, it features essays written by leading scholars in the fields of sociology of law and constitutional theory, including Hauke Brunkhorst, Dar o Rodr gues, Kimmo Nuotio, and Pablo Holmes. The content is divided into four sections, the first of which, Law, State, and Global Crisis, covers topics related to the modern constitutional state, the crisis of global capitalism, and the global rule of law. The second, Symbolic Constitutionalization, analyzes challenges to constitutionalism in the Peripheral Modernity. The authors in the third section examine how the concept of Transconstitutionalism can shed new light on contemporary debates concerning global public law. In turn, the last section of the book, Systems Theory and Public Law, addresses systems theory issues in the fields of legal history and administrative law. The book presents a relevant and original discussion encompassing such diverse fields as constitutional theory, international law, systems theory, and sociology of constitutions.

Passion in Action Rowland Stout, 2025-06-05. Developing a sophisticated and original approach to the nature of emotion, this volume demonstrates that the way we feel about things is simultaneously a product of our reason and a force on it, an aspect both of our agency and of our passivity. As a force on the way we think about things, emotions are passions and felt as such. As a product of the way we think about things, having emotions means we find values in our world. Starting from a conception of what it is to be sensitive to reason, Stout develops an account of emotional dispositions as manifested in forming and maintaining goals. When these dispositions are active, we feel like behaving in certain ways, and this feeling characterizes the phenomenological aspect of emotional states. Each type of emotion corresponds to a characteristic behavioural pattern. Since emotional states are rational responses to features of our environment, having an emotion means that we are treating our environment as meriting that emotional state, i.e. as having value. It follows that every emotion corresponds to a rational perspective, a way of thinking about things. The familiar problem of emotional recalcitrance, where you know your emotional state is not rational but cannot stop feeling that way, is resolved by showing how we may have closer to Humeans than many recent interpreters have Part of the strategy is to examine the thinking of the early modern intellectuals to whom Hume responds Most of these thinkers insisted that passions lead us to pursue harmful objects unless regulated by reason and most regarded passions as representations of good and evil which can be false Understanding Hume's response to these claims requires appreciating his respective characterizations of reason and passion The author argues that Hume's thesis that reason is practically impotent apart from passion is about beliefs generated by reason rather than about the capacity of reason Furthermore the argument makes sense of Hume's sometimes ridiculed description of passions as original existences having no reference to objects The author also shows how Hume understood morality as intrinsically motivating while holding that moral beliefs are not themselves motives and why he thought of passions as self regulating contrary to the admonitions of the rationalists *Congregation of The Passion, Holy Cross Province V.
