Running Dry:

Running Dry Jonathan Waterman, 2010 An eye witness account of the many demands on the Colorado from irrigating 3.5 million acres of farmland to watering the lawns of Los Angeles

Running Dry Stuart A. Kallen, 2015-01-01 As the planet's human population explodes so does the demand for water About one out of every nine people in the world does not have access to safe drinking water while one out of every five almost 1.5 billion humans lives in a region where water demand is outstripping supply But as demand grows supplies do not Climate change has led to severe drought flooding and massive storms in key agricultural areas of the world Industrial and agricultural water pollution threatens public health around the world Environmental protection measures are not keeping up with energy production technologies such as fracking and the corn for fuel market all of which affect water usage rates and safety Both developed and undeveloped areas of the world face challenges with water delivery infrastructure For example undeveloped nations lack even the most basic water delivery systems Millions of global citizens are without sanitation altogether polluting waterways with raw sewage In the developed world water delivery infrastructures are aging and wasteful Domestic and industrial overconsumption of water resources draws down supply capacity depleting Earth's freshwater resources at an alarming rate And in the last few decades private corporations have begun to take over municipal water delivery buying the rights to freshwater supplies and selling bottled water all for large profits As the cost of clean water rises many people can't afford the water they need for everyday use Competition for clean water is increasing and the stakes couldn't be higher Running Dry investigates some tough questions In a crowded world with limited water supplies will we be able to deliver safe clean water to an increasingly thirsty world Can governments businesses and individuals work together to clean up and protect Earth's water resources Are water conservation strategies enough to ensure a water rich future Or will we run dry
