Work, Their Needs, and Their Role in Rural Development Canadian Council on Rural Development, 1979

Rural Women's Participation in Development United Nations Development Programme, 1980

Women in Rural Development International Labour Office, 1980

The World Employment Conference in 1976 noted that women constitute the group at the bottom of the ladder in many developing countries and drew attention to the need for measures to relieve the work burden and drudgery of rural women in particular. The ILO has drawn on the expertise of specialists in order to define the most pressing areas for research policy and action in support of poor rural women. This booklet highlights areas they considered most important including among others women's particular problems under different agrarian structures, the effects of market intrusion on rural women.

Rural Women's Participation in Development United Nations Development Programme, 1980

Women and Participation in Rural Development Kathleen A. Staudt, 1979

Research report on the role of rural women in rural development processes in developing countries, reviews their social status, struggle for equal opportunity, participation in women's associations, household activities, and women's interests, reproduction, etc., and examines issues warranting further research.

References

Women and Development Lourdes Benería, 1982

This book focuses on the role of women in the productive structures of a diverse group of third world countries including India, Peru, Nigeria, Mexico, Singapore, Ethiopia, and China. The product of research sponsored by the International Labour Organization's Programme on Rural Women, Women and Development deals with the specifics of rural women's situations and sets a basis for formulating policies to give direction to their struggle. The nine chapters combine description with analysis, presenting women's work in the context of a world systems perspective. The book emphasizes that rural women, although they appear isolated in homes and villages, are in fact constantly influenced by the world's economic trends.

Education for Development and the Rural Woman: A review of theory and principles with emphasis on Kenya and the Philippines Noreen Clark, 1979

Monograph on nonformal education for rural women in developing countries with particular reference to Kenya and the Philippines. Reviews current theories and recommends that rural development policies should aim to integrate women into community development that learners should determine their own priorities: literacy, farming skills, nutrition, etc. Advocates an active learning approach and discusses issues of evaluation.
