este nivel de educación implica considerar los nuevos desafíos en términos de condiciones sociohistóricas que atraviesan las universidades de América Latina. Cambios en las políticas educativas, redimensionamientos presupuestarios, modificaciones en las demandas y características de los estudiantes, nuevas interpelaciones de la sociedad, el cambio paradigmático que ha afectado la concepción de conocimiento e incluido nuevas racionalidades y nuevos desarrollos específicamente didácticos opuestos a perspectivas tecnicistas se presentan como verdaderos retos a las instituciones formadoras. El rol del profesor universitario se asume como primordial en tanto sujeto social posibilitador de cambios y como garante de la calidad de la formación de los futuros graduados. Basadas en esta premisa, las universidades de Argentina, Brasil, Uruguay y Costa Rica han desarrollado acciones sistémicas tendientes a la formación pedagógica de los profesores universitarios, tarea que se ve desafiada por varias cuestiones políticas, encuadres de formación, lógicas de funcionamiento institucional, la propia biografía escolar de los docentes de este nivel, entre otros aspectos. Cuáles son las acciones más destacadas que han desarrollado al respecto las universidades de estos países? Los equipos de investigación de la Universidad de Buenos Aires, de la Universidad Nacional de Tucumán y de la Universidad Nacional del Sur en la Argentina; de la Universidad de la República en Uruguay; de la Universidad Federal de Pelotas, de la Universidad Estadual de Bahía en Brasil y de la Universidad de Costa Rica intentan responder a esta pregunta en las investigaciones que se presentan en esta obra. Este libro es el resultado de un juicioso análisis del papel que debe desempeñar el investigador en los procesos relacionados con el compromiso académico en el aula, vinculado con la enorme responsabilidad respecto al conocimiento que allí se transmite, se comparte, se genera y se discute, acciones que deben finalizar en una verdadera retroalimentación en el aprendizaje de la proyección de la experiencia investigativa adquirida a lo largo de los años en la vida académica sobre el papel y la obligación docente en este proceso.
