the City in North India Michael S. Reder, Linda M. Morra, 2010-02-10 Troubling Tricksters is a collection of theoretical essays creative pieces and critical ruminations that provides a re visioning of trickster criticism in light of recent backlash against it The complaints of some Indigenous writers the critique from Indigenous nationalist critics and the changing of academic fashion have resulted in few new studies on the trickster For example The Cambridge Companion to Native American Literature 2005 includes only a brief mention of the trickster with skeptical commentary And in 2007 Anishinaabe scholar Niigonwedon Sinclair a contributor to this volume called for a moratorium on studies of the trickster irrelevant to the specific experiences and interests of Indigenous nations One of the objectives of this anthology is then to encourage scholarship that is mindful of the critic's responsibility to communities and to focus discussions on incarnations of tricksters in their particular national contexts. The contribution of Troubling Tricksters therefore is twofold: to offer a timely counterbalance to this growing critical lacuna and to propose new approaches to trickster studies approaches that have been clearly influenced by the nationalists' call for cultural and historical specificity.

Storytelling Rodolphe Gasché, 2018-09-19 An innovative philosophical meditation on the muteness of Holocaust survivors and the human faculty of storytelling. In Storytelling Rodolphe Gasché reexamines the muteness of Holocaust survivors that is their inability to tell their stories. This phenomenon has not been explained up to now without reducing the violence of the events to which survivors were subjected on the one hand and diminishing the specific harm that has been done to them as human beings on the other. Distinguishing storytelling from testifying and providing information, Gasché asserts that the utter senselessness of the violence inflicted upon them is what inhibited survivors from making sense of their experience in the form of tellable stories. In a series of readings of major theories of storytelling by three thinkers: Wilhelm Schlegel, Walter Benjamin, and Hannah Arendt, Gasché systematically assesses the consequences of the loss of the storytelling faculty considered by some an inalienable possession of the human both for the victims, humanity, and for philosophy. This book pursues the problem of what happens when the stories that are the object of narration become so enigmatic and troublesome that they withdraw from the realm of communicability and meaning into the space of a certain muteness. By focusing on Schlegel, Benjamin, and Arendt, Gasché succeeds brilliantly in weaving together the three strands that are most vital to its subject: philosophical rigor, literary sensitivity, and historical concreteness.
