Path To The Ph D Measuring Graduate Attrition In The Sciences And Humanities:

The Path to the Ph.D. National Research Council, Policy and Global Affairs, Board on Higher Education and Workforce, Office of Scientific and Engineering Personnel, Ad Hoc Panel on Graduate Attrition Advisory Committee, 1997-01-03 There is a growing concern among educators and policymakers about the level of attrition from Ph D programs in the sciences and humanities at some U S universities Reliable estimates of graduate student attrition are difficult to obtain however because most information comes from the administrative records of individual institutions This book provides a summary of datasets that could be used to analyze patterns of graduate student attrition and degree completion nationally along with an analysis of recent studies on the subject Based on this information the committee examines the feasibility of designing a system to produce national estimates of graduate student attrition The Path to the Ph.D. Ad Hoc Panel on Graduate Attrition Advisory Committee, Office of Scientific and Engineering Personnel, Board on Higher Education and Workforce, Policy and Global Affairs, National Research Council, 1996-12-30 There is a growing concern among educators and policymakers about the level of attrition from Ph D programs in the sciences and humanities at some U S universities Reliable estimates of graduate student attrition are difficult to obtain however because most information comes from the administrative records of individual institutions This book provides a summary of datasets that could be used to analyze patterns of graduate student attrition and degree completion nationally along with an analysis of recent studies on the subject Based on this information the committee examines the feasibility of designing a system to produce national estimates of graduate student attrition Path through graduate school a longitudinal examination 10 years after bachelor's degree Staphanie C. Nevill, 2007 New and Forthcoming Books National Academy Press (U.S.), 1993 The Education of Historians for Twenty-first Century Thomas Bender, Philip F. Katz, Colin A. Palmer, Committee on Graduate Education, 2010-10-01 An examination and analysis of history education in American colleges and universities In 1958 the American Historical Association began a study to determine the status and condition of history education in U S colleges and universities Published in 1962 and addressing such issues as the supply and demand for teachers student recruitment and training for advanced degrees that report set a lasting benchmark against which to judge the study of history thereafter Now more than forty years later the AHA has commissioned a new report The Education of Historians for the Twenty first Century documents this important new study s remarkable conclusions Both the American academy and the study of history have been dramatically transformed since the original study but doctoral programs in history have barely changed This report from the AHA explains why and offers concrete practical recommendations for improving the state of graduate education The Education of Historians for the Twenty first Century stands as the first investigation of graduate training for historians in more than four decades and the best available study of doctoral education in any major academic discipline Prepared for the AHA by the Committee on Graduate Education the report represents the combined efforts of a cross section of the entire historical profession It draws upon a detailed review of the existing studies and data on graduate education and builds upon this foundation with an exhaustive survey of history doctoral programs This included actual visits to history departments across the country and consultations with scores of individual historians graduate students deans academic and non academic employers of historians as well as other stakeholders in graduate education As the ethnic and gender composition of both graduate students and faculty has changed methodologies have been refined and the domains of historical inquiry expanded By addressing these revolutionary intellectual and demographic changes in the historical profession The Education of Historians for the Twenty first Century breaks important new ground Combining a detailed historical snapshot of the profession with a rigorous analysis of these intellectual changes this volume is ideally positioned as the definitive guide to strategic planning for history departments It includes practical recommendations for handling institutional challenges as well as advice for everyone involved in the advanced training of historians from department chairs to their students and from university administrators to the AHA itself Although focused on history there are lessons here for any department The Education of Historians for the Twenty first Century is a model for in depth analysis of doctoral education with recommendations and analyses that have implications for the entire academy This volume is required reading for historians graduate students university administrators or anyone interested in the future of higher education

Educating Scholars Ronald G. Ehrenberg,Harriet Zuckerman,Jeffrey A. Groen,Sharon M. Brucker,2009-09-28 Meeting the challenges faced by today s U S doctoral humanities programs Despite the worldwide prestige of America s doctoral programs in the humanities all is not well in this area of higher education and hasn t been for some time The content of graduate programs has undergone major changes while high rates of student attrition long times to degree and financial burdens prevail In response the Andrew W Mellon Foundation in 1991 launched the Graduate Education Initiative GEI the largest effort ever undertaken to improve doctoral programs in the humanities and related social sciences The only book to focus exclusively on the current state of doctoral education in the humanities Educating Scholars reports on the GEI s success in reducing attrition and times to degree the positive changes implemented by specific graduate programs and the many challenges still to be addressed Over a ten year period the Foundation devoted almost eighty five million dollars through the GEI to provide support for doctoral programs and student aid in fifty four departments at ten leading universities The authors examine data that tracked the students in these departments and in control departments as well as information gathered from a retrospective survey of students They reveal that completion and attrition rates depend upon financial support the quality of advising clarity of program requirements and each department s expectations regarding the dissertation The authors consider who earns doctoral degrees what affects students chances of finishing their programs and how successful they are at finding academic jobs Answering some of the most important questions being raised about American doctoral programs today Educating Scholars will interest all those concerned about our nation s intellectual future
