Safety In The Skies Personnel And Parties In Ntsp Aviation Accident Investigations:

Safety in the Skies Cynthia C. Lebow, 1999 The National Transportation Safety Board NTSB bears a significant share of the responsibility for ensuring the safety of domestic and international air travel. The NTSB relies on teamwork to resolve accidents; the parties that participate in an investigation may include manufacturers and operators as well as the Federal Aviation Administration. This arrangement works well under most circumstances despite inherent conflicts of interest that may jeopardize or be perceived to jeopardize the integrity of the NTSB investigation. The NTSB's ability to lead investigations and to form expert teams is also seriously threatened by a lack of training equipment and facilities, by poor control of information, and inadequate aids to project management.

The Crash of Piedmont Airlines Flight 22 Paul D. Houle, 2016-01-05 Against a backdrop of inadequate funding, misplaced priorities, and a lack of manpower, American commercial aviation in the 1960s was in a perilous state. In July 1967, when a Piedmont Airlines Boeing 727 collided with a Cessna 310 over Hendersonville, North Carolina, killing 82 people, the industry was in crisis. Congress called hearings on aviation safety, and government and union officials pressured President Lyndon Johnson to request increased funding for aviation safety. But the National Transportation Safety Board's probe into the crash was flawed from the start. The investigative team was made up of individuals whose companies had certain interests in the outcome. The lead investigator was the brother of the vice president of Piedmont Airlines. In an effort to shift blame from the government and Piedmont, critical conversations recorded on tape never made it into the NTSB's report. Maintenance and training records, as well as industry warnings of the 727's operational limitations, were also omitted. This book reveals the true story of the investigation, what was left out, and why.
