considered alongside the preceding Asuka period c 590 650 suggesting some type of organic development from one period to the next This understanding is somewhat distorted given the significant differences in sculptural styles between the two periods Donald McCallum explains the differences as resulting from divergent sources in China and Korea and unique attitudes toward the making of images Donald McCallum is professor of Japanese art history at the University of California Los Angeles and author of Zenkoji and Its Icon A Study of Medieval Japanese Religious Art and The Four Great Temples Buddhist Archaeology Architecture and Icons of Seventh Century Japan University of California Union Catalog of Monographs Cataloged by the Nine Campuses from 1963 Through 1967: Subjects University of California (System).
