and deep seabed mining Bringing together a variety of perspectives the work is designed to serve several purposes and educate a few different types of readers The work introduces and offers a history on deep seabed mining the legal context and how it fits into the new UN Convention on Law of the Sea on the Conservation and Sustainable Use of Marine Biological Diversity of Areas beyond National Jurisdiction BBNJ treaty the International Seabed Authority DSM governing body and the ecological impacts of deep seabed mining The brief is also aimed at marine ecologists and other ocean scientists who may already be aware of the DSM and the ecological impacts but not of the cultural heritage at risk It introduces deep water archaeology to them and a few case studies of heritage at risk like in New Zealand or polluting wrecks Finally the book offers suggestions for steps forward and case studies of cultural heritage being included in environmental impact assessments By the end of the book all parties should feel educated enough to begin championing a ban on or more regulations for seabed mining One additional strength of the book is that it gives voice to those without a traditional academic background

Intangible cultural heritage has been a hotbed issue in mining regulations and many indigenous voices especially from the Pacific have been loudly outspoken at the ISA While writing thousand word academic journal articles was not in their wheelhouse they have given permission for their speeches to be transcribed and included in the book This will bring a new set of voices into the scientific discourse on the issue The book is also set up to have many images to demystify the deep and show readers the beauty that must be protected

Brand Antarctica Hanne Elliot Fønss Nielsen, 2023-12 Antarctica is and has always been very much for sale Whales seals and ice have all been marketed as valuable commodities but so have the stories of explorers The modern media industry developed in parallel with land based Antarctic exploration and early expedition leaders needed publicity to generate support for their endeavors Their lectures narratives photographs and films were essentially advertisements for their adventures At the same time popular media began to use the newly encountered continent to draw attention to commercial products These advertisements both trace the commercialization of Antarctica and reveal how commercial settings have shaped the dominant imaginaries of the place By contextualizing and analyzing Antarctic advertisements from the late nineteenth century to the present Brand Antarctica identifies five key framings of the South Polar continent a place for heroes a place of extremity a place of purity a place to protect and a place that transforms Demonstrating how these conceptual framings of Antarctica in turn circulate through our culture Hanne Elliot F nss Nielsen challenges common assumptions about Antarctica s past and present encouraging readers to rethink their own relationship with the Far South
