Seagrasses of Australia Anthony W. D. Larkum, Gary A. Kendrick, Peter J. Ralph, 2018-07-27 This book takes the place of Biology of Seagrasses A Treatise on the Biology of Seagrasses with Special Reference to the Australian Region co edited by A W D Larkum A J MaCComb and S A Shepherd and published by Elsevier in 1989 The first book has been influential but it is now 25 years since it was published and seagrass studies have progressed and developed considerably since then The design of the current book follows in the steps of the first book There are chapters on taxonomy floral biology biogeography and regional studies The regional studies emphasize the importance of Australia having over half of the world s 62 species including some ten species published for Australia since the previous book There are a number of chapters on ecology and biogeography fish biology and fisheries and dugong biology are prominent chapters Physiological aspects again play an important part including new knowledge on the role of hydrogen sulphide in sediments and on photosynthetic processes Climate change pollution and environmental degradation this time gain an even more important part of the book Decline of seagrasses around Australia are also discussed in detail in several chapters Since the first book was published two new areas have received special attention blue carbon and genomic studies Seagrasses are now known to be a very important player in the formation of blue carbon i e carbon that has a long turnover time in soils and sediments Alongside salt marshes and mangroves seagrasses are now recognized as playing a very important role in the formation of blue carbon And because Australia has such an abundance and variety of seagrasses their role in blue carbon production and turnover is of great importance The first whole genomes of seagrasses are now available and Australia has played an important role here It appears that seagrasses have several different suites of genes as compared with other land plants and even in comparison with freshwater hydrophytes This difference is leading to important molecular biological studies where the new knowledge will be important to the understanding and conservation of seagrass ecosystems in Australia Thus by reason of its natural abundance of diverse seagrasses and a sophisticated seagrass research community in Australia it is possible to produce a book which will be attractive to marine biologists coastal scientists and conservationists from many countries around the world

Sustainable and Traditional Environmental Conservation in Asia Dipayan Dey, Ayyanadar

Arunachalam, 2024-10-23 This book articulates the traditional Japanese concept of conservation called Satoyama for effective management of nature's goods and services at a community ecosystem interface in the climate milieu The term Satoyama refers to socio ecological production landscapes and seascapes which are mosaics of diverse land uses and ecosystems that have long been shaped through sustainable human interactions with nature This multilevel study of conservation science therefore serves an interdisciplinary academia consistent with conventions on climate change biodiversity and sustainable development to establish links between conservation priorities and development objectives In this book the Satoyama is introduced as a rights based neo economic conservation paradigm for production linked sustainable development supplemented with case studies from Asia The International Partnership for the Satoyama Initiative was established at the 10th Conference of the Parties to the Convention on Biological Diversity in 2010 to protect and revitalise Satoyama However even after a decade this panacea for sustainability remains unfulfilled for practitioners and policy planners in the global south Satoyama have been disappearing as a result of irresponsible consumption of natural resources and drastically changing agro farming practices threatening wildlife inhabiting those areas as well as the life and livelihood of marginal communities in the vicinity In consideration of the global pandemic crisis the present monograph aims for introspection within a traditional sustainable practice of Asia to augment community resilience and preparedness
