

Season in the Sun and Other Pleasures

by WOLCOTT GIBBS

Wolcott Gibbs was born in New York City on March 15, 1902, making him roughly contemporaneous with Charles A. Lindbergh, Thomas E. Dewey, Lucius M. Beebe, and the flying machine. Being almost precisely the same age as an aviator, a politician, and a book has given him a curiously mingled sense of power and hilarity; being some ten months older than the airplane has given him a sense of being taught, so to speak, in the slipstream of history, of being buffeted all his life by the strange, new, mechanical wind that first rose from the propellers at Kitty Hawk and, by the time he got around to writing the paper in this book, had risen to a tornado. His work, that is, has always been accomplished in a stiff, unnatural breeze and the peculiarity of his style and point of view may easily be accounted for by the fact that a good many sheets blew away before he was quite finished with them.

The details of this windy life are not particularly interesting. He was a little too young for one war and a little too old and domesticated for the next. He went to practically all the preparatory schools on the Eastern seaboard, but not to college, sensibly considering himself already rather over-educated. Like most authors, he followed several preliminary callings—an architect's apprentice, a railway worker, a reporter on a succession of rural newspapers, half social intelligence, half boilerplate. Napoleon got him on the New Yorker as a copy-reader in 1917, but it was a reckless willingness to tackle any subject, whether he knew anything about it or not, that transformed him eventually into a writer and critic. As noted in the Foreword, he has contributed more than a million words to Harold W. Ross, who has printed most of them with that odd mixture of apprehension and delight that makes employment on his magazine so stimulating to the creative artist.
