BY THE SEASONS

A FOUR-SEASON
GUIDE TO PATTERNING
BIG BULLS

Most elk hunting occurs during the rutting season. The rut begins with the August and September months for the hunter at hand. The rutting season ends with the first of October and the end of the rut. The rut is over and the bull has shed his velvet antlers, which happen sometime in late October.

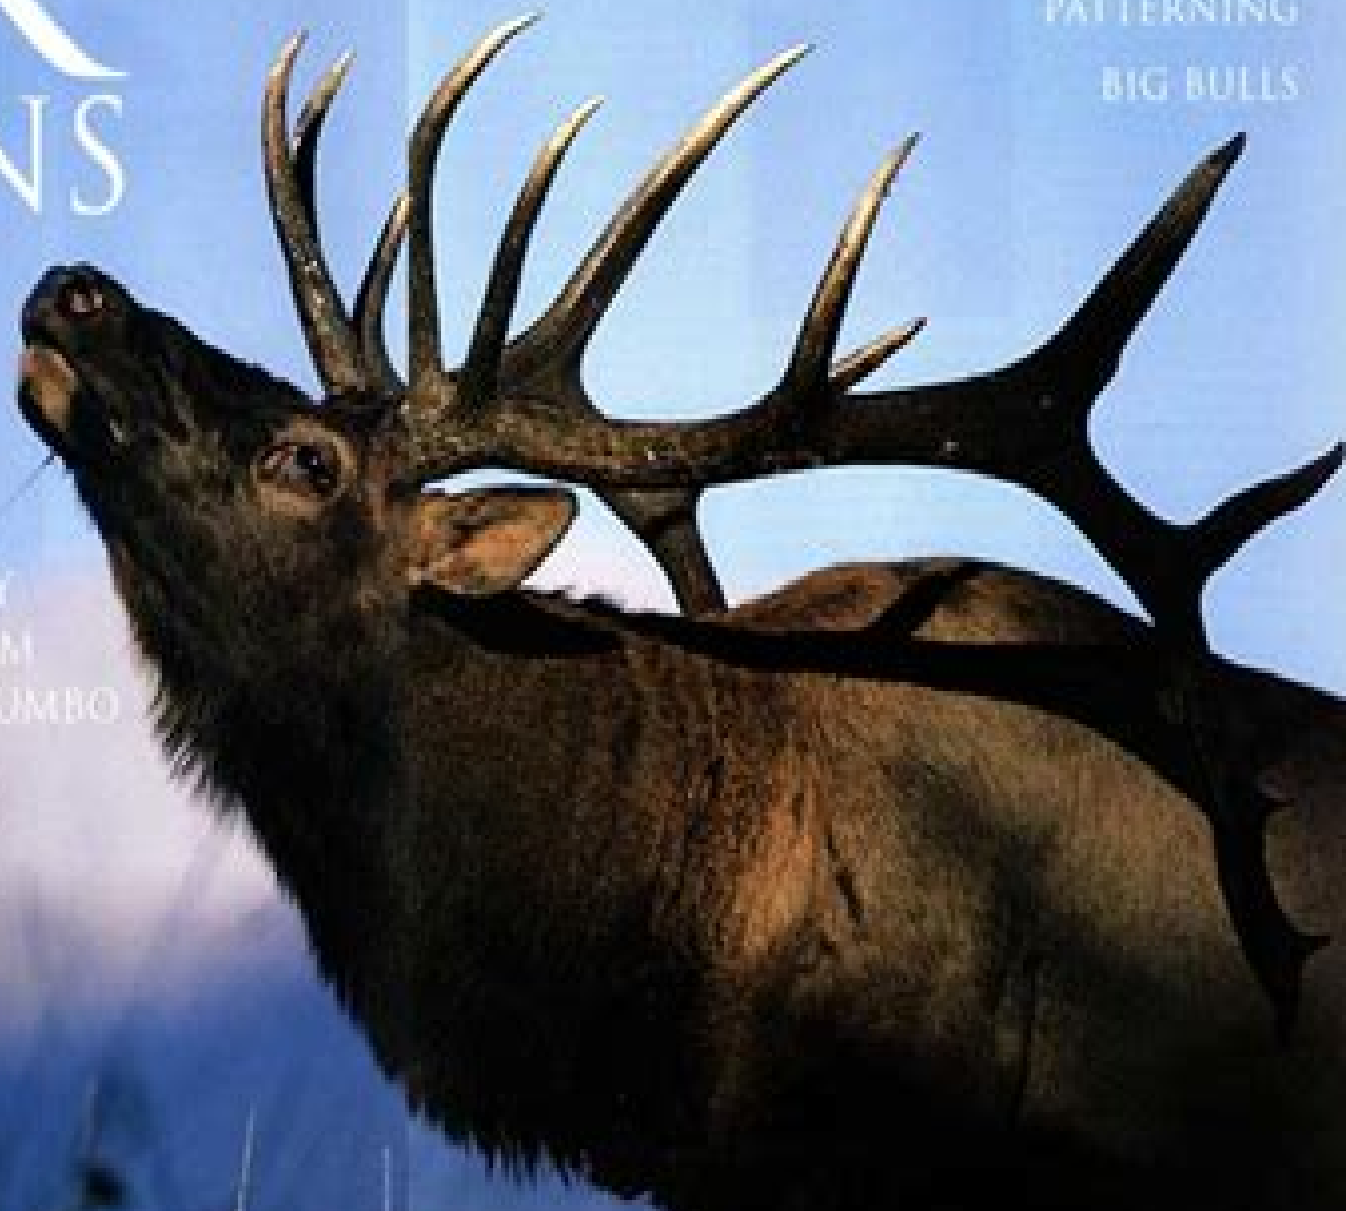

The behavior and subsequent hunting strategies depend very much on the season, including the time of year, the time of day, the weather and hunting pressure. Understand them, and you'll be in a much better position to succeed.

THE PRE-RUT

Most hunting occurs from August through October. I and most other hunters in the region, like many others, have been hunting elk for about 20 years. We have seen many elk and many different hunting strategies. We have seen many different hunting strategies. We have seen many different hunting strategies.

ELK BEHAVIOR During the rutting season, male elk are very active. They will travel long distances and spend a lot of time in the mountains. They will also be very vocal. They will call out to other elk and to hunters. They will also be very aggressive. They will fight with other elk and with hunters. They will also be very curious. They will look at hunters and try to get close to them. They will also be very shy. They will run away from hunters and try to hide. They will also be very alert. They will look for hunters and try to avoid them. They will also be very smart. They will learn from their mistakes and try to do better next time.
