The Paradox of Islamic Finance Ryan Calder, 2024-08-06 How the booming Islamic finance industry became an ultramodern hybrid of religion and markets In just fifty years Islamic finance has grown from a tiny experiment operated from a Volkswagen van to a thriving global industry worth more than the entire financial sector of India South America or Eastern Europe You can now shop with an Islamic credit card invest in Islamic bonds and buy Islamic derivatives But how has this spectacular growth been possible given Islam's strictures against interest In The Paradox of Islamic Finance Ryan Calder examines the Islamic finance boom arguing that shariah scholars experts in Islamic law who certify financial products as truly Islamic have made the industry a profitable if controversial hybrid of religion and markets Critics say Islamic finance merely reproduces conventional interest based finance with the shariah scholars blessing From an economic perspective they are right the most popular Islamic products act like conventional interest bearing ones earning healthy profits for Islamic banks and global financial heavyweights like Deutsche Bank and Goldman Sachs Yet as Calder shows by delving into the shariah scholars day to day work what seem like high tech work arounds to outsiders carry deep and nuanced meaning to the scholars and to the hundreds of millions of Muslims who respect their expertise He argues that shariah scholars conception of Islamic finance is perfectly suited to the age of financialization and the global efflorescence of shariah minded Islam

Politics of Islamic Finance Clement Henry, 2019-07-30 Can the contemporary Islamic finance movement be shown to meet the requirements of modern commerce In the wake of the terrorist attacks on America the UN Security Council passed a resolution targeting transnational sources of terrorist funds The United States and the International Monetary Fund are encouraging the governments of the Middle East to adopt policies of economic liberalism and a new type of capitalism based on Islamic values and beliefs is emerging The aims of the book are to explore the political implications of the slow but steady accumulation of Islamic capital to analyse the connections between Islamic finance and Islamic political movements in Middle Eastern and North African countries to show that the commonly perceived connection between Islamic finance and money laundering and terrorism is by no means the complete picture Readers will learn to appreciate the various political contexts in which Islamic finance operates in the Middle East and North Africa and will acquire some understanding of its political as well as economic constraints Hopefully possible misunderstandings about Islamic banking and finance will be corrected The book is divided into two parts part one is thematic and lays the ground for the country specific case studies in part two covering the Sudan Kuwait Jordan Turkey Tunisia and Egypt The contributors include political scientists economists and historians Key Features A major topical issue Written by the world s leading experts on Islamic Political Economy Explores the connections between Islamic finance and Islamic political movements Includes country specific case studies

The Battlefield Hugh Roberts, 2017-03-14 The violence that has ravaged Algeria has often defied explanation Regularly invoked in debates about political Islam transitions to democracy globalization and the right of humanitarian interference Algeria s tragedy has been reduced to a clash of stereotypes Islamists vs a secular state terrorists vs innocent civilians or generals vs a defenseless society The prevalence of such simplistic representations has disabled public opinion inside as well as outside the country and contributed to the intractability of the conflict This collection of essays offers a radical corrective to Western misconceptions Rejecting the usual tautological approaches of inherent predetermined conflict Hugh Roberts explores the outlook and evolution of the various internal forces as they emerged the Islamists the Berberists the factions within the army and the regime in general and he looks at external interests and actors He explains their strategies and the maneuvers in which they have engaged The resulting analyses illuminate the startling dynamics of the conflict and the real issues at stake and identify the implications not only for Algeria but also for this crucial region Informed by a deep knowledge of Algeria and Algerian history these accessible essays guide the reader through the extraordinary politics of the drama in all its complexity

Challenges of Global Capital Markets to Information-Shy Regimes Clement M. Henry, 1998-06-09 The evolution of the global economy since the end of the Cold War poses special challenges to the Middle East and North Africa MENA Official development assistance has diminished whereas private capital flows to developing countries have dramatically increased Little of the new private capital goes to MENA The region received only US 6.9 billion in 1996 barely more than its quota of official development assistance Most of the MENA countries are now in need of infusions of external private capital yet seem to be at a major disadvantage in competition with other regions notably East Asia Europe Central Asia and Latin America Many reasons can be given for MENA's economic plight Arguably the region tends now to be at a disadvantage precisely because of its earlier affluence relative to other regions of the developing world However other factors may also be at work In this paper political factors will be examined using Tunisia as the case study The paper suggests that political structures may be inhibiting economic growth and reform by constraining information flows and thereby deterring private investment This paper attempts to specify relationships between flows of information and investment flows Other facts may also inhibit investment flows but the free flow of information is becoming a requisite in the globalizing economy for certain forms of foreign and local investment
