Anthropological Approaches To Resettlement Michael M. Cernea, 2019-04-08 This book is about people who have been forced to resettle because of development projects. It takes stock of recent applied social science research on involuntary resettlement and forms a part of an international discussion on theories of resettlement and what social scientists can do about it.

Unbound Richard L. Currier, 2017-08-08 Like Guns, Germs, and Steel, a work of breathtaking sweep and originality that reinterprets the human story. Although we usually think of technology as something unique to modern times, our ancestors began to create the first technologies millions of years ago in the form of prehistoric tools and weapons. Over time, eight key technologies gradually freed us from the limitations of our animal origins. The fabrication of weapons, the mastery of fire, and the technologies of clothing and shelter radically restructured the human body, enabling us to walk upright, shed our body hair, and migrate out of tropical Africa. Symbolic communication transformed human evolution from a slow biological process into a fast cultural process. The invention of agriculture revolutionized the relationship between humanity and the environment, and the technologies of interaction led to the birth of civilization. Precision machinery spawned the industrial revolution, and the rise of nation states, and in the next metamorphosis, digital technologies may well unite all of humanity for the benefit of future generations. Synthesizing the findings of primatology, paleontology, archaeology, history, and anthropology, Richard Currier reinterprets and retells the modern narrative of human evolution that began with the discovery of Lucy and other Australopithecus fossils. But the same forces that allowed us to integrate technology into every aspect of our daily lives have also brought us to the brink of planetary catastrophe. Unbound explains both how we got here and how human society must be transformed again to achieve a sustainable future.

The Psychology of Cultural Experience Carmella C. Moore, Holly F. Mathews, 2001-09-06 The essays in this volume, first published in 2001, focus upon the relationship of individual experience to culture and chart a research agenda for psychological anthropology in the twenty-first century. Drawing upon fieldwork in diverse cultural settings, the authors use a range of contemporary perspectives in the field, including person-centered ethnography, activity theory, attachment theory, and cultural schema theory, to describe the ways in which people think, feel, remember, and solve problems. Fascinating insights emerge from these fine-grained accounts of personal experience. The research demonstrates that it is possible to identify cross-cultural universals in psychological development and mental states and that individual psychology is not determined solely by unique cultural patterns.

21st Century Anthropology: A Reference Handbook H. James Birx, 2010-06-10 Highlighting the most important topics, issues, questions, and debates, these two volumes offer full coverage of major subthemes and subfields within the discipline of anthropology.

Intentional Community Susan Love Brown, 2001-12-20 Although anthropologists have studied intentional communities in the past, they have seldom exerted a concerted effort to evaluate the intentional community in terms of the anthropological language of cultural change Drawing from the work of Victor Turner Gregory Bateson and Anthony F C Wallace Intentional Community examines historic and contemporary intentional communities within the United States leading to a better understanding of these communities the larger nation state of which they are a part and the ways in which the two interact Applying classical anthropological theory to elements of western society the contributors discuss how the individuals function the ways in which these communities come into being and disappear the various forms these communities take how their members reinterpret features of the larger culture and the ways in which outsiders relate to people within them

Astronomical Pulses to History's Phases Michael A. Susko, 2025-09-26 Bringing together seven volumes of research Michael A Susko presents a grand synthesis of astronomical biological and cultural evolution Using a logarithmic model he shows how the universe has unfolded in accelerating pulses from galaxies and planets to the rise of life and symbolic humanity This rhythm of time is then extended through the Neolithic tells and into recorded history where generational phases reveal cultures growing and transforming in their own natural cycles Three distinct measures of time logarithmic pulses triadic generational units and fifteen year historical generations converge to reveal a patterned fabric of change Across billions of years and into the present moment the author demonstrates how time is not a smooth line but a structured unfolding marked by phases of complexity consciousness and cultural renewal The result is both a sweeping map of our past and a reflection on the nature of time itself its rhythms its surprises and its promise of transformations yet to come
