Parental Development:

Parental Development Jack Demick, Krisanne Bursik, Rosemarie DiBiase, 2014-02-25 This volume seeks to identify and define the parameters of a relatively new problem area parental development Drawing on the grand developmental theories of Sigmund Freud Lawrence Kohlberg Jean Piaget Lev Vygotsky Heinz Werner and their descendants this book has the potential to generate an area of common concern for those interested in either child adolescent or adult development through the novel application of developmental principles and considerations to the ecological context of parenting To that end this volume brings together theory and research from the subfields of adult and child adolescent development Chapter authors place the problem area of parental development in theoretical context and examine selected psychological part processes implicated by focusing on cognitive and psychosocial development The authors then deal with a range of issues that are perhaps less traditional and or more in line with the complex character of everyday life That is they utilize either relatively novel comparison groups or treat parents at later stages of development rather than those in young adulthood as is often the case Finally the authors uncover both similarities and differences among their theoretical perspectives with an eye toward delineating some possible future research directions Parenting and Child Development in Nontraditional Families
