Recovering Inequality Steve Kroll-Smith, 2018-08-15 A lethal mix of natural disaster dangerously flawed construction and reckless human actions devastated San Francisco in 1906 and New Orleans in 2005 Eighty percent of the built environments of both cities were destroyed in the catastrophes and the poor the elderly and the medically infirm were disproportionately among the thousands who perished These striking similarities in the impacts of cataclysms separated by a century impelled Steve Kroll Smith to look for commonalities in how the cities recovered from disaster In Recovering Inequality he builds a convincing case that disaster recovery and the reestablishment of social and economic inequality are inseparable Kroll Smith demonstrates that disaster and recovery in New Orleans and San Francisco followed a similar pattern In the immediate aftermath of the flooding and the firestorm social boundaries were disordered and the communities came together in expressions of unity and support But these were quickly replaced by other narratives and actions including the depiction of the poor as looters uneven access to disaster assistance and successful efforts by the powerful to take valuable urban real estate from vulnerable people Kroll Smith concludes that inexorable market forces ensured that recovery efforts in both cities would reestablish the patterns of inequality that existed before the catastrophes The major difference he finds between the cities is that from a market standpoint New Orleans was expendable while San Francisco rose from the ashes because it was a hub of commerce
