impulses that propelled societies through a century when territorial states and transnational forces both claimed power engaging sometimes as rivals and sometimes as allies Maier focuses on recurring institutional constellations project states including both democracies and dictatorships that sought not just to retain power but to transform their societies new forms of imperial domination global networks of finance and the international associations foundations and NGOs that tried to shape public life through allegedly apolitical appeals to science and ethics In this account which draws on the author's studies over half a century Maier invites a rethinking of the long twentieth century His history of state entanglements with capital the decline of public projects and the fragility of governance explains the fraying of our own civic culture but also allows hope for its recovery communicate and sustain themselves in concert with the British Army and with each other during the era of the two world wars What did the British want from the dominion and Indian armies and how did they go about trying to get it Douglas E Delaney seeks to answer these questions to understand whether the imperial army project was successful Answering these questions requires a long term perspective one that begins with efforts to fix the armies of the British Empire in the aftermath of their desultory performance in South Africa 1899 1903 and follows through to the high point of imperial military cooperation during the Second World War Based on multi archival research conducted in six different countries on four continents Delaney argues that the military compatibility of the British Empire armies was the product of a deliberate and enduring imperial army project one that aimed at standardizing and piecing together the armies of the empire while at the same time accommodating the burgeoning autonomy of the dominions and even India At its core this book is really about how a military coalition worked
