Finding Our Way Home Gerald G. Jampolsky,Gerald Jampolsky

an Diane V Cirincione,2010-06 In a deeply heartfelt way Jerry Jampolsky and Diane Cirincione share stories of their spiritual journey detours they ve taken and people who have impacted them along their life trail Using the Hawaiian tradition of talking story Jerry and Diane demonstrate the daily application of spiritual principles and practical spirituality Individually and together they weave their journey for us as it continues to evolve from the influences around them They inspire us to embrace and share our own stories of peaks and valleys that make up our journeys The authors honest and vulnerable style of communicating continues to reveal their life purposes in the choices they make and the lessons they ve learned Each day still provides challenges and circumstances that call to those parts of us that want to judge others or ourselves they write

What is different now is that we more quickly recognize when we're lost and the choice we have to return to the path of unconditional love. Once we remember that our purpose is service and helping others as well as letting go of our judgments and grievances by practicing forgiveness, the path is easier, the direction clearer, and the destination of peace achievable.

Paris in American Literatures Jeffrey Herlihy-Mera, Vamsi K. Koneru, 2013-05-16 Paris could be the first word of an epic poem. While there are many cultural pilgrimages in Western Arts: The Alhambra, Venice, Mumbai, Machu Picchu, and others, Paris stands above others, flourishing as an image of possibility and sophistication. The city has a rich history with foreign artists and writers, intellectual and political exiles, military leaders, and philosophers from all over the globe. Americans have gone to Paris since the colonial period, and their writing about the city is a captivating corpus of literature. Looking into novels, memoirs, poetry, and other writings, Paris in American Literatures: On Distance as a Literary Resource examines the role of the French capital in the work of a diverse range of authors, including Ralph Waldo Emerson, Edith Wharton, Sherwood Anderson, Ernest Hemingway, Henry Miller, Saul Bellow, Monica Truong, and many others.

A Search for Enemies Ted Galen Carpenter, 1992 The passing of the Cold War is the most important development of the late 20th century, yet the United States clings tenaciously to old policies. Both the Bush administration and Democratic leaders have insisted on perpetuating a host of obsolete alliances, including NATO and the alliance with Japan, which cost American taxpayers nearly 150 billion a year. Ted Galen Carpenter, director of foreign policy studies at the Cato Institute, offers a provocative critique of that status quo strategy. Although Washington's outdated alliances have no real adversary or credible mission, Carpenter says they hold the potential to embroil the United States in obscure conflicts, ethnic and otherwise, that have little relevance to America's legitimate security concerns. As an alternative, he proposes strategic independence, under which the United States would act only to defend vital interests: the republic's physical integrity, political independence, or domestic liberty. Carpenter calls for the foreign policy equivalent of zero-based budgeting, insisting that because of the dramatic changes in the world caused by the collapse of the Soviet Union, all alliances must be justified anew, regardless of any utility they may have had during the Cold War. He places under the microscope America's multilateral treaty obligations to defend other nations: NATO, ANZUS, which links the United States, Australia, and New Zealand, and the Rio Treaty, which provides a collective defense arrangement for the Western Hemisphere. He also examines four important bilateral security agreements with Japan, South Korea, the Philippines, and Pakistan. This is the book on a new foreign policy for the United States.
