The Administration of Aesthetics Richard Burt, 1994 Calls attention to the crucial difficulties inherent in censorship when it is used as a tool for cultural criticism The new censorship of the arts some cultural critics say is just one more item on the new Right's agenda and is part and parcel of attempts to regulate sexuality curtail female reproductive rights deny civil rights to gays and lesbians and privatize public institutions Although they do not contest this assessment the writers gathered here expose crucial difficulties in using censorship old and new as a tool for cultural criticism Focusing on historical moments ranging from early modern Europe to the postmodern United States and covering a variety of media from books and paintings to film and photography their essays seek a deeper understanding of what censorship criticism and the public sphere really mean Getting rid of the censor the contributors suggest does not eliminate the problem of censorship In varied but complementary ways they view censorship as something more than a negative unified institutional practice used to repress certain discourses Instead the authors contend that censorship actually legitimates discourses not only by allowing them to circulate but by staging their circulation as performances through which good and bad discourses are differentiated and opposed These essays move discussions of censorship out of the present discourse of diversity into what might be called a discourse of legitimation In doing so they open up the possibility of realignments between those who are disenchanted with
