Tendencies and Tensions of the Information Age Jorge Reina Schement,2018-04-24 The development of technology and the hunger for information has caused a wave of change in daily life in America Nearly every American s environment now consists of cable television video cassette players answering machines fax machines and personal computers Schement and Curtis argue that the information age has evolved gradually throughout the twentieth century National focus on the production and distribution of information stems directly from the organizing principles and realities of the market system not from a revolution sparked by the invention of the computer Now available in paperback Tendencies and Tensions of the Information Age brings together findings from many disciplines including classical studies etymology political sociology and macroeconomics This valuable resource will be enjoyed by sociologists historians and scholars of communication and information studies Human Rights in an Information Age Gregory J. Walters,2001-01-01 CONTENTS Information and Communication in Economics Robert E. Babe,2012-12-06 Although there is a burgeoning interest among economists in information economics much of the literature adopts a reductionist conceptualization of information defining it exclusively as reduction in uncertainty exploring the implications of imperfect information on markets This neoclassical treatment obscures major interrelations between economic and communicatory processes Drawing on a range of distinguished scholarship from both the economic and communication studies disciplines Information and Communication in Economics explores the implications for economic analysis and our understanding of economic processes of employing a more complete conceptualization of information information as locus of power information as evolutionary agent and media systems as devices for control Cyber-Marx Nick Dyer-Witheford,1999 In this highly readable and thought provoking work Nick Dyer Witheford assesses the relevance of Marxism in our time and demonstrates how the information age far from transcending the historic conflict between capital and its laboring subjects constitutes the latest battleground in their encounter Dyer Witheford maps the dynamics of modern capitalism showing how capital depends for its operations not just on exploitation in the immediate workplace but on the continuous integration of a whole series of social sites and activities from public health and maternity to natural resource allocation and the geographical reorganization of labor power He also shows how these sites and activities may become focal points of subversion and insurgency as new means of communication vital for the smooth flow of capital also permit otherwise isolated and dispersed points of resistance to connect and combine with one another Cutting through the smokescreen of high tech propaganda Dyer Witheford predicts the advent of a reinvented autonomist Marxism that will rediscover the possibility of a collective communist transformation of society Refuting the utopian promises of the information revolution he discloses the real potentialities for a new social order in the form of a twenty first century communism based on the common sharing of wealth Copyrighting Culture Ronald V.
