International Mediation in Civil Wars Timothy D Sisk, 2009-01-08 This book evaluates the role of international mediators in bringing civil wars to an end and makes the case for powerful peacemaking using incentives and sanctions to leverage parties into peace As internal violence within countries is a hugely significant threat to international peace in the post Cold War era the question of how these wars end has become an urgent research and policy question This volume explores a critical aspect of peacemaking that has yet to be sufficiently evaluated the turbulent period beyond the onset of formal or open negotiations to end civil wars and the clinching of an initially sustainable negotiated settlement The book argues that the transnational flow of weapons resources and ideas means that when civil wars today end they are more likely to do so at the negotiating table than on the battlefield It uses bargaining theory to develop an analytical framework to evaluate peace processes moving from stalemate in wars to negotiated settlement and it rigorously analyses the experiences of five cases of negotiated transitions from war and the role of international mediators South Africa Liberia Burundi Kashmir and Sri Lanka

The Era of Private Peacemakers Marko Lehti, 2018-07-07 The field of peacemaking is in turbulent change There are more peacemaking actors than before but fewer success stories and an increasing number of violent conflicts tend to resist negotiated agreements Tools and practices created for traditional inter and intra state conflicts have become ineffective and revision of old mediation practices is called for This book examines how the private peacemaking organisations have faced this challenge In the 21st century private peacemakers have become a central part of peace diplomacy and have appeared as flexible actors whose innovative thinking paves the way for reconsidering and reinventing old practices of mediation. Instead of emphasizing the act of resolution, a new emphasis is given to the transformation of violence into a peace system, the complexity of conflict and the inadequateness of rational management. Furthermore, this shift has brought civic society actors from the field of reconciliation to the field of peace mediation. This new pragmatic approach under development can be called dialogic mediation.

Ceasefire Agreements and Peace Processes Malin Akebo, 2016-11-10 This book analyses and compares ceasefire agreements as part of peace processes in intrastate armed conflicts. Research repeatedly underscores the importance of ceasefire agreements in peace processes but suggests that they can influence such processes in fundamentally different ways. However, despite contradictory expectations, remarkably few studies have so far been devoted to systematic and in-depth analysis of ceasefire agreements in contemporary intrastate armed conflicts. This book contributes to filling this gap by using a process-oriented conflict dynamics approach to analyse and explain how ceasefire agreements are being influenced by and in turn influence the broader dynamics of peace processes. Empirically, the book focuses on the armed conflicts in Aceh, Indonesia and Sri Lanka. Based on document studies and 57 interviews with key actors, it presents comparative insights and in-depth knowledge about ceasefire agreements in different contextual settings. The book problematizes the common assumption in the literature that ceasefire agreements create momentum in peace processes and pave the way to peace, and it provides a more nuanced analysis and understanding based on two empirical cases analysed within a comparative framework. In contrast to conventional wisdom, it demonstrates how ceasefires, on the contrary, also can have negative implications on peace processes. This book will be of much interest to students of conflict resolution, peace studies, intra-state conflict, security studies and IR in general.

Arab Approaches to Conflict Resolution Nahla Yassine-Hamdan, Frederic Pearson, 2014-07-11 This book examines Arab approaches to mediation, negotiation and settlement of political disputes. This book proposes that two clusters of independent variables are potentially responsible for the distinctive nature of Arab conflict resolution. Firstly, those linked with Arab political regimes and imperatives, and secondly, those linked with Arab and/or Islamic culture. The text also focuses on the Arab League and its history of involvement in crisis and conflict situations along with the roles of individual leaders emissaries and extra regional actors such as IGOs Inter Governmental Organisations in undertaking mediation initiatives IGO and Arab League activity has taken on new importance since the various intervention attempts in connection with the Arab Spring since 2011 During the negotiation process most Arab regimes tend to view conflicts within a broad historical context and Islamic culture prioritises the cohesion of the community and internal stability of the state over individual autonomy This has created an authoritarian style of leadership and in practice leaders in the Middle East have had near absolute authority in the decision making process a fact which will have a lot of weight in conflict management and whether peace will endure for a long period of time This book is unique in studying these clusters through comparative systematic case study analysis of events prior to and subsequent to the Arab Spring augmented by a quantitative analysis of sample data on Arab disputes compiled from a larger and newly augmented study comprising the years 1945-2000 Complementary data from the Uppsala Conflict Data Program's UCDP data base of armed conflicts since 1975 is also utilized This book will be of much interest to students of conflict resolution peace and conflict studies Middle Eastern politics and IR in general
