Peasant Society and Marxist Intellectuals in China Kamal Sheel, 2014-07-14 Whereas most writing on the Communist Revolution in China has concentrated on the influence of intellectual leaders this book examines the role of peasants in the upheaval viewing them not as a malleable mass but as a dynamic social force interacting with the radical intelligentsia Focusing on the Xinjiang region Kamal Sheel traces the historical roots of the early twentieth century agrarian crisis that led to a large scale revolution in the late 1920s one of the most successful peasant movements organized by the Chinese Communists A fresh analysis emerges of the remarkable Marxist intellectual Fang Zhimin who used his deeply entrenched rural connections to organize the movement through a creative synthesis of traditional folk concepts with modern Marxist thought This history begins with the impact of the Taiping Rebellion and proceeds to document the rapid disintegration of the small peasant economy under the pressures of world economics a state in crisis and a qualitatively different landed upper class It discusses exploitation protest and rural uprisings in the context of the crisis of paternalism marked by a progressive deterioration in the social relationships in rural areas Integrating this investigation of rural upheaval with recent social science theories on peasant movements the study ultimately explores the growth of the Xinjiang revolutionary movement Originally published in 1989 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Burma's Road Toward Development David I. Steinberg,2019-03-01 A liberalization of economic policies has inspired considerable economic growth and encouraged the development of Burma s natural resources but according to David Steinberg the current military government is akin to previous civilian governments in its commitment to socialism as a vehicle for development The economic flexibility demonstrated by the government has not been matched by political liberalization and as a result economic growth remains a captive of administrative and policy constraints Steinberg traces the origins and acceptance of socialist thought and planning in Burma and shows how socialist ideology has had to be tempered with pragmatism in order to make economic development possible Looking to Burma s future he also points out two central problems facing the country strained minority relations which have kept the nation from developing a sense of unity and difficulties with political succession brought on by the military regime s preoccupation with perpetuating its own leadership

Rethinking Revolutions from 1905 to 1934 Stefan Berger,Klaus Weinbauer,2022-12-13 This edited collection offers a timely and original perspective on the many upheavals and revolutions that broke out across the world during the early twentieth century. With previous research tending to confine revolutions within national borders, this book sets out to place them within a broader global sphere of thought and action. The authors explore the time phase between the Russian Revolution of 1905 and the Asturias Revolution of 1934, including cases from South Africa, Australia, China, the Middle East, and Latin America. Providing insights from leading scholars in the field, this collection highlights the interconnectedness and transnationalism of upheavals and revolutions, offering a new approach which integrates political, social, and cultural history. This study is an attempt to show how religious kinship and factional ties cut across class alignments, leading to the communalization of class struggle between the peasants and the exploiting classes in East Bengal during 1920-1947. During a substantial stay in some East Bengal villages in the summer of 1971, when East Pakistan was in the traumatic process of being transformed into Bangladesh, it first dawned upon me that peasants were not stupid, devoid of political consciousness. Discussions with different types of peasants revealed that at least the upper echelons were aware of the implications of the liberation struggle for Bangladesh and the superpower involvement in it. Richard Nixon and Indira Gandhi were familiar names. Ordinary peasants often quoted the Bengali news readers and commentators of the BBC world service and the Voice of America. Well-to-do peasants who owned transistor radio sets regularly tuned into the British, American, and Indian radio stations. Many inquisitive and worried peasants asked me, then a fresh graduate from Dhaka University, how their cherished Sonar Bangla (golden Bengal) would improve their socio-economic conditions. Many peasants also took part in the liberation struggle as members of the Mukti Bahini or freedom fighters. Almost everyone, with a few exceptions who collaborated with the Pakistan armed forces, was a keen supporter of Bangladesh. After the emergence of Bangladesh, things did not change to the expectations of the masses but rather deteriorated so much that Henry Kissinger is said to have coined the phrase 'bottomless basket' as a denotation for Bangladesh because of the rampant corruption of a big section of the Bengali bourgeoisie at that time. I was provoked to write the history of the peasants' glorious role in the Liberation Struggle, which was being overshadowed by claims and counter-claims of heroism and sacrifice by members of the privileged parasitical urban elites. This work may be regarded as a prelude to the history of the freedom struggle that eventually led to the creation of Bangladesh. This is an attempt to shed light on the peasant politics, almost synonymous with Muslim politics in the region during the significant period between 1920 and 1947, when East Bengal was going through the political process that culminated in the creation of East Pakistan in 1947.
