Peer To Peer Using Peer To Peer Strategies In Drug Abuse Prevention:

Peer to Peer United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime,2003 Peer to peer or peer education programmes are often used as a drug prevention strategy This manual is the result of a meeting in 2001 of peer to peer youth groups from 14 European Union states It sets out the best features of peer to peer programmes how to design and plan them and how to evaluate their effectiveness Peer to Peer United Nations,2003-12-01 Evidence-Based Skills in Criminal Justice Pamela

Ugwudike,Peter Raynor,Jill Annison,2017-12-20 How can evidence based skills and practices reduce re offending support desistance and encourage service user engagement during supervision in criminal justice settings How can those who work with service users in these settings apply these skills and practices This book is the first to bring together international research on skills and practices in probation and youth justice while exploring the wider contexts that affect their implementation in the public private and voluntary sectors Wide ranging in scope it also covers effective approaches to working with diverse groups such as ethnic minority service users women and young people Handbook of Drug Abuse

Prevention Zili Sloboda,William J. Bukoski,2007-08-06 There are a number of reasons why this book is important First there is no one source that summarizes what we know about the prevention of substance abuse from the research field so the book serves as a repository of accumulated knowledge on prevention theory intervention design and development and prevention research methodology Second as an evolving field prevention science has only begun to assert itself in both the arenas of practice and policy The formation of the Society for Prevention Research in 1991 was the first recognition that a science of prevention existed and required a separate forum to present the rapidly growing content of the field for discussion and review Finally there is a need to establish a baseline a reference point against which progress in the field of prevention science can be assessed This book serves all of these purposes The idea for this book grew from the observation in the early 1990s that after decades of attempts to develop effective interventions to prevent drug use among children and adolescents in the United States that we were finally having success particularly in addressing the initiation of use These successes are the result of research that has provided a better understanding of the factors and processes associated with the onset of substance use The SAGE Encyclopedia of Marriage, Family, and Couples Counseling Jon Carlson,Shannon B.

Dermer,2016-09-15 The SAGE Encyclopedia of Marriage Family and Couples Counseling is a new all encompassing landmark work for researchers seeking to broaden their knowledge of this vast and diffuse field Marriage and family counseling programs are established at institutions worldwide yet there is no current work focused specifically on family therapy While other works have discussed various methodologies cases niche aspects of the field and some broader views of counseling in general this authoritative Encyclopedia provides readers with a fully comprehensive and accessible reference to aid in understanding the full scope and diversity of theories approaches and techniques and how they address various life events within the unique dynamics of families couples and related interpersonal relationships Key topics include Assessment

Communication Coping Diversity Interventions and Techniques Life Events Transitions Sexuality Work Life Issues and more Key features include More than 500 signed articles written by key figures in the field span four comprehensive volumes Front matter includes a Reader's Guide that groups related entries thematically Back matter includes a history of the development of the field a Resource Guide to key associations websites and journals a selected Bibliography of classic publications and a detailed Index All entries conclude with Further Readings and Cross References to related entries to aid the reader in their research journey

Persuasive Communication and Drug Abuse Prevention Lewis Donohew, Howard E. Sypher, William J. Bukoski, 2012-12-06 The history of drug abuse prevention campaigns suggests limitations in producing measurable changes in behavior In the past there was concern over the possibility of such publicity actually encouraging interest in drug use rather than discouraging such behavior Although little or no scientifically sound empirical evidence has been found to support such a view several social science textbooks still refer to this as something of which to be wary Reviews of early research appear to indicate inadequate methods and a lack of rigor in theory testing In recent years however research in communication and its uses in drug abuse prevention has become considerably more sophisticated and communication is being used far more effectively In this book the editors bring together some of the most successful drug abuse prevention researchers in the country along with other experts in this field or in persuasive communication to address use and effects of both mass media and interpersonal strategies This collection illustrates just how far the study of public influence through mass media has come especially regarding such a vital relevant issue as drug abuse prevention

Inhibitory Control and Drug Abuse Prevention Michael T. Bardo, Diana H. Fishbein, Richard Milich, 2011-03-30 The purpose of this book is to review our state of knowledge about the neurobehavioral and psychosocial processes involved in behavioral inhibitory processes and to provide an insight into how these basic research findings may be translated into the practice of drug abuse prevention interventions Over the last decade there has been a wealth of information indicating that substance use disorders do not simply reflect an exaggeration of reward seeking behavior but that they also represent a dysfunction of behavioral inhibitory processes that are critical in exercising self control A number of studies have determined that individuals with substance use disorders have poor inhibitory control compared to non abusing individuals In addition the fact that the adolescent period is often characterized by a lack of inhibitory control may be one important reason for the heightened vulnerability for the initiation of drug use during this time Controlled experiments utilizing neuroscience techniques in laboratory animals or neuroimaging techniques in humans have revealed that individual differences in prefrontal cortical regions may underlie at least in part these differences in inhibitory control Although a few excellent journal reviews have been published on the role of inhibitory deficits in drug abuse there has been relatively little attention paid to the potential applications of this work for drug abuse prevention The current book will provide both basic and applied researchers with an overview of this important health relevant topic Since translational research cuts across multiple disciplines and most readers are not familiar with all of these disciplines the reading level will be geared to be accessible to graduate students as well as to faculty and researchers in the field The book will be organized around three general themes encased within introductory and concluding chapters The first theme will review basic neurobehavioral research findings on inhibition and drug abuse Chapters in this theme will emphasize laboratory studies using human volunteers or laboratory animals that document the latest research implicating a relation between inhibition and drug abuse at both the neural and behavioral levels of analysis The second theme will move the topic to at risk populations that have impulse control problems including children adolescents and young adults The third theme will concentrate on prevention science as it relates to inhibitory control Chapters in this theme will be written by experts attempting to develop and improve prevention interventions by integrating evidence based knowledge about inhibitory control processes In all of the chapters writers will be asked to speculate about innovative approaches that may be useful for the practice of prevention
