Sea Charts Of The Early Explorers:

Sea Charts of the Early Explorers Michel Mollat, Monique de La Roncière, 1984-01-01 Sea Charts of the Early Explorers, 1984 From Sea Charts to Satellite Images David Buisseret, 1990-06-22 The authors write authoritatively and crisply How to use maps in teaching is spelled out carefully but the authors also manage to sketch in the background of American mapping so the book is both a manual and a history Commentaries are sprinkled with stimulating new ideas for instance on how to use bird s eye views and country atlases in the classroom and there are didactic discussions on maps showing the walking city and the impact of the street car An extraordinarily wide range of maps is depicted which makes for good browsing pondering and close study This is a very good highly attractive and worthwhile book it will have great impact on the use of old and new maps in teaching As well this is a tantalizing survey of mapping the United States and will whet the appetites of students and encourage them to learn more about maps and their origins John Warketin Cartographica

Princes and Princely Culture 1450-1650, Volume 1, 2003-10-15 This book contains thirteen essays on European princes and princely culture between 1450 and 1650 Many products of medieval and renaissance culture literature music political ideology social and governmental structures the fine arts and even forms of devotional practice found their best expression in the context of the courts of greater and lesser princes This volume the first of two concentrating on the late Middle Ages and the Early Modern Era has essays on selected courts north of the Alps and the Pyrenees the court of Burgundy under the Valois dukes that of France under Catherine de Medici and of Henry IV that of Scotland under James III IV V VI and of Mary Queen of Scots that of Margaret of Austria at Mechelen of Scandinavia of Heidelberg under Frederick the Victorious and Philip the Upright and that of Maximilian I Contributors include Gayle K Brunelle Dagmar Eichberger Annette Finley Crosswhite Martin Gosman Margriet Hoogvliet Michael Lynch Alasdair A MacDonald Olaf Mørke Jan Dirk Müller Rita Schlusemann Alan Swanson Arjo Vanderjagt and Janet Hadley Williams Masons, Tricksters and Cartographers David Turnbull, 2003-09-02 In an eclectic and highly original study Turnbull brings together traditions as diverse as cathedral building Micronesian navigation cartography and turbulence research He argues that all our differing ways of producing knowledge including science are messy spatial and local Every culture has its own ways of assembling local knowledge thereby creating space through the linking of people practices and places The spaces we inhabit and assemblages we work with are not as homogenous and coherent as our modernist perspectives have led us to believe rather they are complex and heterogeneous motleys Mapping an Atlantic World, circa 1500 Alida C. Metcalf, 2020-10-13 How did intricately detailed sixteenth century maps reveal the start of the Atlantic World Beginning around 1500 in the decades following Columbus's voyages the Atlantic Ocean moved from the periphery to the center on European world maps This brief but highly significant moment in early modern European history marks not only a paradigm shift in how the world was mapped but also the opening of what historians call the Atlantic World But how did sixteenth century chartmakers and mapmakers begin to conceptualize and present to the public an interconnected Atlantic World that was open and navigable in comparison to the mysterious ocean that had blocked off the Western hemisphere before Columbus's exploration. In Mapping an Atlantic World circa 1500 Alida C. Metcalf argues that the earliest surviving maps from this era which depict trade, colonization, evangelism, and the movement of peoples reveal powerful and persuasive arguments about the possibility of an interconnected Atlantic World. Blending scholarship from two fields, historical cartography and Atlantic history, Metcalf explains why Renaissance cosmographers first incorporated sailing charts into their maps and began to reject classical models for mapping the world. Combined with the new placement of the Atlantic, the visual imagery on Atlantic maps which featured decorative compass roses, animals, landscapes, and native peoples communicated the accessibility of distant places with valuable commodities. Even though individual maps became outdated quickly, Metcalf reveals how new mapmakers copied their imagery which then repeated on map after map. Individual maps might fall out of date, be lost, discarded, or forgotten, but their geographic and visual design promoted a new way of seeing the world with an interconnected Atlantic World at its center. Describing the negotiation that took place between a small cadre of explorers and a wider class of cartographers, chartmakers, cosmographers, and artists, Metcalf shows how exploration informed mapmaking and vice versa. Recognizing early modern cartographers as significant agents in the intellectual history of the Atlantic, Mapping an Atlantic World circa 1500 includes around 50 beautiful and illuminating historical maps.

Shakespeare's Ocean Daniel Brayton, 2012. Study of the sea both in terms of human interaction with it and its literary representation has been largely ignored by ecocritics. In Shakespeare's Ocean, Dan Brayton foregrounds the maritime dimension of a writer whose plays and poems have had an enormous impact on literary notions of nature and in so doing plots a new course for ecocritical scholarship. Shakespeare lived during a time of great expansion of geographical knowledge. The world in which he imagined his plays was newly understood to be a sphere covered with water. In vital readings of works ranging from The Comedy of Errors to the valedictory The Tempest, Brayton demonstrates Shakespeare's remarkable conceptual mastery of the early modern maritime world and reveals a powerful benthic imagination at work.

The World Map, 1300-1492 Evelyn Edson, 2007-07-15. A history of the development of world maps during the later medieval period in the centuries leading up to Columbus's journey. In the two centuries before Columbus, mapmaking was transformed. The World Map 1300-1492 investigates this important transitional period of mapmaking. Beginning with a 1436 atlas of ten maps produced by Venetian Andrea Bianco, Evelyn Edson uses maps of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries to examine how the discoveries of missionaries and merchants affected the content and configuration of world maps. She finds that both the makers and users of maps struggled with changes brought about by technological innovation: the compass, quadrant, and astrolabe; rediscovery of classical mapmaking approaches; and increased travel. To reconcile the tensions between the conservative and progressive worldviews, mapmakers used a careful blend of the old and the new to depict a world that was changing and growing before their eyes. This engaging and informative study reveals how the ingenuity creativity and adaptability of these craftsmen helped pave the way for an age of discovery A comprehensive and complex picture of the changing face of medieval geography With the mastery of a formidable palette of historiographic knowledge and well reasoned discussions of the sources The World Map 1300 1492 will certainly remain an important work to consult for both medieval and early modern scholars for many years to come Ian J Aebel Terrae Incognitae

Mapping Ethnography in Early Modern Germany S. Leitch, 2010-09-27 As the first book length examination of the role of German print culture in mediating Europe s knowledge of the newly discovered people of Africa South Asia and the Americas this work highlights a unique and early incident of visual accuracy and an unprecedented investment in the practice of ethnography

Science, Empire and the European Exploration of the Pacific Tony Ballantyne, 2018-10-24 This collection of essays assesses the interrelationship between exploration empire building and science in the opening up of the Pacific Ocean by Europeans between the early 16th and mid 19th century It explores both the role of various sciences in enabling European imperial projects in the region and how the exploration of the Pacific in turn shaped emergent scientific disciplines and their claims to authority within Europe Drawing on a range of disciplines from the history of science to geography imperial history to literary criticism this volume examines the place of science in cross cultural encounters the history of cartography in Oceania shifting understandings of race and cultural difference in the Pacific and the place of ships books and instruments in the culture of science It reveals the exchanges and networks that connected British French Spanish and Russian scientific traditions even in the midst of imperial competition and the ways in which findings in diverse fields from cartography to zoology botany to anthropology were disseminated and crafted into an increasingly coherent image of the Pacific its resources peoples and histories This is a significant body of scholarship that offers many important insights for anthropologists and geographers as well as for historians of science and European imperialism

Terra Antarctica William L. Fox, 2011-04-15 How does the human mind transform space into place or land into landscape For more than three decades William L Fox has looked at empty landscapes and the role of the arts to investigate the way humans make sense of space In Terra Antarctica Fox continues this line of inquiry as he travels to the Antarctic the largest and most extreme desert on earth This contemporary travel narrative interweaves artistic cartographic and scientific images with anecdotes from the author s three month journey in the Antarctic to create an absorbing and readable narrative of the remote continent Through its images history and firsthand experiences snowmobile trips through whiteouts and his icy solo hikes past the edge of the mapped world Fox brings to life a place that few have seen and offers us a look into both the nature of landscape and ourselves

The Mapmakers' Quest David Buisseret, 2003-05-22 In 1400 Europe was behind large parts of the world in its understanding of the use of maps For instance the people of China and of Japan were considerably more advanced in this respect And yet by 1600 the Europeans had come to use maps for a huge variety of tasks and were far ahead of the rest of the world in their appreciation of the power and use of cartography The

Mapmakers Quest seeks to understand this development not only to tease out the strands of thought and practice which led to the use of maps but also to assess the ways in which such use affected European societies and economies Taking as a starting point the question of why there were so few maps in Europe in 1400 and so many by 1650 the book explores the reasons for this and its implications for European history It examines inter al how mapping and military technology advanced in tandem how modern states territories were mapped and borders drawn up the role of maps in shaping the urban environment and cartography s links to the new sciences The Sovereign Map Christian Jacob,2006-10-15 Publisher
