The United States in World War I James T. The Peace Negotiations Robert Lansing, 2020-03-06 It is with extreme reluctance as the reader will understand that I make any reference to the conference which the President held with the American Commissioners at the Hotel Crillon on January 10 because of the personal nature of what occurred It would be far more agreeable to omit an account of this unpleasant episode But without referring to it I cannot satisfactorily explain the sudden decision I then reached to take no further part in the preparation or revision of the text of the Covenant of the League of Nations Without explanation my subsequent conduct would be and not without reason open to the charge of neglect of duty and possibly of disloyalty I do not feel called upon to rest under that suspicion or to remain silent when a brief statement of what occurred at that conference will disclose the reason for the cessation of my efforts to effect changes in the plan of world organization which the President had prepared In the circumstances there can be no impropriety in disclosing the truth as to the cause for a course of action when the course of action itself must be set forth to complete the record and to explain an ignorance of the subsequent negotiations regarding the League of Nations an ignorance which has been the subject of public comment

The Peace Negotiations / a Personal Narrative Robert Lansing, 2014-12-08 criticizable to leave the American people in doubt as to a disagreement between two of their official representatives upon a matter of so grave importance to the country as the negotiation of the Treaty of Versailles They are entitled to know the truth in order that they may pass judgment upon the merits of the differences which existed I am not willing that the present uncertainty as to the facts should continue Possibly some may think that I have remained silent too long If I have it has been only from a sense of obligation to an Administration of which I was so long a member It has not been through lack of desire to lay the record before the public The statements which will be made in the succeeding pages will not be entirely approved by some of my readers In the circumstances it is far too much to expect to escape criticism The review of facts and the comments upon them may be characterized in certain quarters as disloyal to a superior and as violative of the seal of silence which is considered generally to apply to the
