Peacemaking Practicing At The Intersection Of Law And Human Conflict:

Peacemaking Douglas Noll, 2003 In his large and ambitious project Noll weaves many strands of academic thinking about human conflict into an integrated view of why people fight how they fight what they fight over and how they can instead make peace whether in the courtroom or beyond Public administration, democracy and peacebuilding in the Democratic Republic of the Congo Jean Chrysostome K. Kiyala, 2025-08-01 The Democratic Republic of Congo DRC presents a striking paradox vast natural and mineral wealth coexist with persistent poverty weak infrastructure and fragile institutions Kiyala's four part scholarly book explores these tensions aiming to identify practical and effective strategies to address the country's complex challenges To meaningfully confront the DRC's enduring crises Kiyala argues that public administration must engage with key drivers of insecurity and instability These include 1 Employing the Dodd Frank Act's Section 1502 on conflict minerals particularly the impact of the de facto embargo on the 3Ts tin tungsten and tantalum 2 The question of Congolese citizenship for the Banyamulenge Tutsi communities of the DRC and the need for legislative clarity 3 Regional and international collaboration to address ongoing threats to peace such as the remnants of the FDLR and other armed groups 4 The complex integration of the M23 movement and other armed factions into the national army through effective screening vetting and identification processes 5 The revitalisation of transitional justice reconciliation and national healing efforts Without addressing these core issues with resolve and coherent strategies efforts toward lasting peace and sustainable development will remain elusive The book also introduces the peacebuilding evolution systems theory PBEST a novel framework that integrates peacebuilding theory with insights from neuroscience The PBEST emphasises the progressive development of peace from individual disposition to collective global action for domestic and international security Rich in empirical analysis this scholarly work offers significant insights not only for scholars and researchers but also for practitioners and policymakers in African studies political science public administration and conflict resolution Working Through Conflict Joseph P. Restorative Justice Jean Chrysostome K. Kiyala, 2018-07-18 This book investigates how while children used as soldiers are primarily perceived as victims of offences against international law they also commit war atrocities In the aftermath of armed conflict the mainstream justice system targets warlords internationally armed groups and militias commanders who abduct and enrol children as combatants leaving child perpetrators not being held accountable for their alleged gross human rights violations Attempts to prosecute child soldiers through the mainstream justice system have resulted in child rights abuses Where no accountability measures have been taken demobilised young soldiers have experienced rejection and eventually some have returned to soldiering This research provides evidence of the potential of restorative justice peacemaking circles and locally based jurisprudence specifically the Baraza to hold former child soldiers accountable and facilitate their reintegration into society

Where the Evidence Leads Robert C. Johansen, 2021-10-19 By shifting American security policy away from maximizing military power for the United States and toward maximizing human security for all policymakers and citizens can also maximize national security for the United States and sustainable peace for the world Why do war and political violence persist Political realists argue that violent conflict and the struggle for power are inherent in the international system and there is little we can do but manage it However as Robert Johansen argues in this path breaking work there are other ways forward In Where the Evidence Leads Johansen develops an empirical realist theory to enable the United States to respond more effectively to rising security threats Together peace research and security studies show that more security benefits are likely to result from maximizing the causes or correlates of peace than from maximizing military power Ironically a global grand strategy for human security with national security folded into it is likely to produce more security for the United States than a national security strategy Peace reigns when states implement peace correlates which range from addressing all nations security fears to making life more predictable through better global governance This approach respectful of forgotten insights from Hans Morgenthau and others revolutionizes thinking about national security policy by bringing it into a human security framework The analysis shows that the anarchic militarized balance of power system can be gradually changed with help from enhanced lawmaking enforcement and governance capacities This thought provoking book builds bridges between past policies many of which have failed and more deft ways of handling new realities that focus on building peace In a world of threats this book opens doors onto a future of sustainable peace security and hope

Climate Change and Socio-political

Violence in Sub-Saharan Africa in the Anthropocene Jean Chrysostome K. Kiyala, Norman Chivasa, 2024-05-04 This book explores the theoretical contribution of peace ecology to the understanding and practice of environmental and conventional peacebuilding. It integrates environmental questions and factors that drive socio-political violence and climate change-induced violence in Sub-Saharan Africa in the Anthropocene. It demonstrates how international peace and global security are no longer solely grounded in conventional peacebuilding that has evolved from liberal to democratic peace theories but rather in the complex critical and synergic relations between peace studies and environmental studies. It provides a pluridisciplinary body of knowledge that emphasises the need for food security, social climate, social good, social capital, and sustainable development at the age of climate change and climate wars. It underscores the potential of peace ecology to reduce the Earth systems vulnerability to mitigate anthropogenic global warming's consequences on humanity, the ecosystem, and biodiversity. It yields various models of peacebuilding, conflict-sensitive and climate-sensitive adaptation strategies to enhance the African Region's security and stability. Finally, this volume argues that planetary boundaries framework remains the safer space within which human and sustainable development can be pursued and attained and future generations to thrive. A comprehensive and international response to socio-political violence and climate change-induced violence should take into account the vulnerability of individual countries, regions, and the global world in order to achieve the dreams of a better future that makes this book a cutting edge scholarly work. Journal of Mennonite Studies, 2004
