Lattefer, 2008 Radioactive wastes are waste types containing radioactive chemical elements that do not have a practical purpose They are sometimes the products of a nuclear processes such as nuclear fission However other industries not directly connected to the nuclear industry can produce large quantities of radioactive waste For instance over the past 20 years it is estimated that just the oil producing endeavours of the US have accumulated 8 million tons of radioactive wastes The majority of radioactive waste is low level waste meaning it has low levels of radioactivity per mass or volume This type of waste often consists of used protective clothing which is only slightly contaminated but still dangerous in case of radioactive contamination of a human body through ingestion inhalation absorption or injection The issue of disposal methods for nuclear waste was one of the most pressing current problems the international nuclear industry faced when trying to establish a long term energy production plan yet there was hope it could be safely solved In the U S the DOE acknowledged much progress in addressing the waste problems of the industry and successful remediation of some contaminated sites yet also major uncertainties and sometimes complications and setbacks in handling the issue properly cost effectively and in the projected time frame In other countries with lower ability or will to maintain environmental integrity the issue would be more problematic This new book presents the latest research in the field Schiff Base Metal

Report United States. Congress. Senate, Ancient Boats in North-West Europe Sean McGrail, 2014-06-11 At last a paperback edition of this standard work on marine archaeology. Sean McGrail's study received exceptional critical acclaim when it was first published in hardback in 1987 and it is now revised and published in paperback for the first time. Professor McGrail provides an authoritative survey of water transport across Northern Europe from the Late Palaeolithic to the later Middle Ages using evidence of excavations but also documentary sources, iconographic and ethnographic evidence. In the process he answers such key questions as: How were these boats built? What sort of environment were they used in? What speeds could they achieve and how were they navigated? The Commemoration of Women in the United States Teresa Bergman, 2019-05-22 The Commemoration of Women in the United States examines the public memorialization of women in the US over the past century with a particular focus on the late twentieth century and early twenty-first. The analysis centers on six case examples of memorialization and explores broad themes of cultural representation. Bergman argues that the construction or relocation of a series of prominent national memorials together form a significant moment of change in the ways in which women are commemorated in the US. The historic and present-day challenges facing such commemoration are examined with reference to broader political debates. The case examples explored are the Women in the Military Service for America Memorial, the Women's Rights National Historic Park, the Vietnam Veterans Women's Memorial, the Rosie the Riveter WWII Home Front National Historical Park, the Eleanor Roosevelt Statue in the Franklin Delano Roosevelt Memorial and the Portrait Monument of Susan B. Anthony, Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Providing insightful and grounded analysis of the history and practice of the commemoration of women in the US, this book makes useful reading for a range of scholars and students in subjects including heritage studies, communication studies and history.
