Pediatric Burns:

Behavioral Aspects of Pediatric Burns Kenneth J. Tarnowski, 2013-06-29 In recent years considerable professional attention has centered on the behavioral aspects of various childhood illnesses and injuries Indeed child health psychology has grown exponentially over the past decade One index of this growth is found in the number of texts that have recently appeared in the area Gross Karoly 1988 Krasnegor Arasteh Levine Carey Crocker Routh 1988 Russo Tuma 1982 Varni 1983 In general these texts provide summaries of the psychological literature across a variety of established e g oncology and emerging psychoneuroimmunology areas of child health Until recently many books on the psychological aspects of pediatric health provided no or minimal information about the psychosocial plight of child burn victims In some instances pediatric burns might be mentioned parenthetically as another example of a population for which behavioral treatment procedures e g pain management may be of value In part the relative inattention devoted to this population may be related to the perception that the literature in this area is sketchy and characterized by significant methodological and substantive shortcomings In many instances this perception is largely justified However it is also the case that the pediatric burn literature has evolved considerably over the past decade and that the incidence of and morbidity associated with severe burn injuries mandates immediate and increased attention by mental health professionals

Pediatric Trauma Care II AHC Media, LLC, 2014-03-17 Pediatric trauma continues to have a significant impact on the health and well being of children in the United States Trauma continues to be the leading cause of death in children 1 to 18 years of age and accounted for more than 14 000 deaths among all children 0 to 18 years of age In 2008 there were more than 8.6 million nonfatal injuries among newborn to 18 year olds with an injury rate of greater than 1 in 10 There is little debate that a coordinated effort and pediatric specific advances in pediatric trauma systems prehospital care and hospital care and injury prevention can have a positive impact on pediatric trauma outcomes in the United States However there are still gaps in access to centers that deliver pediatric focused trauma care especially in
