

HEALTHY DEVELOPMENT SERVICES AT A GLANCE

Healthy Development Services (HDS) treats children ages 0-5 with mild to moderate developmental and behavioral concerns and their families.

"I can't imagine practicing pediatrics without HDS. It would be like practicing pediatrics without immunizations."

Dr. Marsha Spitzer, Family Health Centers of San Diego

HDS is an effective system of care, integrated into the community

HDS provides needed services to families and connects them to higher levels of care in the community, when necessary. Pediatricians partner with HDS to support families.

HDS fills a gap

HDS provides developmental and behavioral treatment services to children who would otherwise not qualify for other early intervention services available in the community like insurance or school-based services.

HDS provides a family-centered approach

HDS is a relational system that promotes integrated care where all service providers work together to promote the well-being of a child and their family.

HDS meets the needs of infants, young children, and families

HDS conducts screening, assessment, and triage to connect families to the best treatment service to meet their child and family's needs with crucial navigation support and care coordination services.

HDS supports caregiver mental health

Quality parent-child interactions and the parent-child relationship are the cornerstones of healthy development and an essential feature of HDS. Supporting parent mental health reduces a child's risk for developmental delays.

HDS is cost-effective and timely

Investing in early childhood programs are the best opportunity to provide a significant impact to a child's development with the greatest cost savings. HDS is an excellent return on investment.

Parenting Tom Luster, Lynn Okagaki, 2006-04-21 Parenting An Ecological Perspective was originally created in 1993 to answer questions such as Why do parents differ markedly in the ways in which they care for their children What factors contribute to individual differences in parenting behavior The framework used for addressing these questions is the ecological perspective developed by Urie Bronfenbrenner who recognized that children s development is influenced by the interactions that they have over time with the people objects and symbols in their immediate environment Luster and Okagaki have updated the original text focusing on parental behavior and also included 6 new chapters covering topics such as fathers gender of parent children with special needs ethnicity and socioeconomic status and parent education The text summarizes the latest research on factors that influence parenting with each chapter providing a look at one important influence and the linkages among these various factors An ecological perspective draws attention to the fact that the lives of parents and children are intertwined and that understanding factors that influence parents is important for understanding the experiences of children

A Practical Guide to the Evaluation of Child Physical Abuse and Neglect Angelo P. Giardino,Michelle A. Lyn,Eileen R. Giardino,2010-06-09 As we near the 50th anniversary of the landmark article by C Henry Kempe and his colleagues entitled The Battered Child Syndrome which ushered in the modern era of professional attention by pediatricians and other child health professionals we have reason for both celebration and concern We can take heart that over the recent ve decades a great deal of professional attention focused on the problem of child abuse and neglect In every state of the country there are mandatory reporting laws that require nurses physicians and social workers to report suspicions of maltreatment to the appropriate authorities for investigation The act of reporting provides legal immunity to the reporter except when performed in bad faith Progress in understanding the factors that place children at risk for harm from physical abuse and neglect now permits prevention and intervention The peer reviewed literature dealing with child abuse and neglect has proliferated with high quality work being done and reported on the many dimensions related to the epidemiology mechanism treatment and prognosis of child maltreatment Efforts are being directed toward developing an evidence based approach to the prevention of child abuse and neglect These are some of the positives However negatives exist and remain reasons for concern Despite a tremendous amount of attention to the problem of maltreatment there are at least 3 million reports of suspected child abuse and neglect made annually with nearly 1 million cases being substantiated
