Portsite And Wound Recurrences In Cancer Surgery Incidence Pathogenesis Prevention:

Port-Site and Wound Recurrences in Cancer Surgery M.A. Reymond, H.J. Bonjer, F. Köckerling, 2012-12-06 During the past 9 years reports of port site deposits following laparoscopic surgery for malignancy especially laparoscopic resection of colonic cancer have cast a shadow on the wisdom of the laparoscopic approach in the surgical management in patients with cancer Those reports of port site deposits some 90 cases reported in the literature up to 1999 have opened a can of worms and highlighted the scarcity of our knowledge on cancer cell migration from solid tumors and the factors that underlie their successful implantation in surgical wounds both in the presence and absence of a positive pressure pneumoperitoneum The jury is out even in relation to the effect of the healing surgical access wound on the biochemical and cellular repair processes and the associated growth factors enhance or prevent implantation of exfoliated viable tumor cells Whatever the answer to this question it is clear that tumor cells do implant in healing surgical wounds and the key question is whether this is facilitated by laparoscopic surgery with CO pneumoperitoneum compared to the traditional 2 surgical exposure It is known that tumors shed malignant cells into the blood stream the peritoneal cavity and in the case of hollow organs intraluminally Equally there is good evidence that surgical and instrumental manipulation of tumors induce exfoliation of viable tumor cells
